Birds and Men—
Deterding and Pertinax—
Cruel as the Grave.
The Prince Flies Home.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

ON THE RED BANK, N. J., railroad station yesterday two large flag baskets and two pasteboard boxes with holes to admit air, were filled with carrier pigeons. A railroad man opened them, freeing four or five dozen birds.

"I don't know where they come from or where they are going," said he. "They were often sent here to be turned loose. I suppose they go home."

The beautiful birds, descendants of wild rock pigeons, found in steep Swiss canyons, flew up in two groups, and for more than ten minutes circled round and round, regaining their sense of direction.

PRESENTLY the two flocks united, flew off together, over the roof of the S. S. Thompson general contractors' building in a north-easterly direction.

"They always go over that building, after they fly around ten or fifteen minutes to make up their minds," said a bystander.

PRESENTLY flocks of young humans, released from their educational cages, will be turned loose in the world. It will take them more than fifteen minutes to decide on direction, and many will never reach the destination. Some day when men shall have lived on earth as many million years as birds have lived here they too will be born with a sense or direction and know which way to go.

Looking after the flying birds, Courtland Smith, said:

"Lindbergh must have in his brain the knowledge that guides them."

YESTERDAY two interesting men were in New York, where this is written. One, a Frenchman who signs his writings "Pertinax," has made Europe and this country listen as few writers have done in the last 50 years.

Americans that return from France, to tell amazed relatives about the lack of ice water, tell them also that the French are a very talkative people.

They would be surprised if they met Pertinax, who listens, thinks, remembers everything, says little.

THE OTHER interesting personality in town, on his way to Europe, was Sir Henri W. A. Deterding, K. B. E.

He is more than a K. B. E. As head of the Shell Oil Company, he has stood the American oil industry more or less on its head.

He looks something like Clemenceau, very much like the late Judge Gary. As an individual in business, fighting the power of the combined oil companies of the United States, he is a bigger figure in the oil industry all over the world than any one other man. Sixty-three years old, he lives on ocean steamers and in sleeping cars.

Asked whence he came, he said, "from the Kettleman Hill oil field in California."

That field belongs to Standard Oil of California. A wise man visits his competitor.

The most extraordinary oil field in the world, Deterding calls Kettleman Hill, pumping out oil that is almost pure gasoline. If the supply lasts, as geologists think it will, there is, according to Deterding, no possibility of exaggerating the value of that field.

THE OIL business is complicated. Deterding expects to buy some surplus gas of the Kettleman Hills oil field, run it in pipes to oil fields of his own that are getting tired, sluggish, run the Kettleman Hill gas down into the ground, and use it to force additional oil supplies from old wells.

OIL MEN, according to Deterding, should think more about getting new products from oil, less about increasing a supply, too abundant, now.

Deterding has a new product, so volatile, evaporating so quickly, that if you put your finger in it, rapid evaporation would burn as though you had put it in boiling water.

Compressed into two small tanks, that oil product will heat and light an ordinary home for two months.

A WOMAN fifty years old, formerly an actress, murdered her best friend, a woman twenty years younger, then killed herself.

The police say "jealousy." The younger woman, according to their theory, was invited, the older woman not invited, to some social function.

That probably does not tell all the story. But if the Angel Gabriel has in his records any pages devoted to savage killing, the word "jealousy" appears in them often:

"Love is strong as death; jealousy is cruel as the grave. The coals thereof are coals of fire, which hath a most vehement flame."

THE PRINCE OF WALES, home from his African hunting, beat the flying record from Marseilles to Windsor Castle.

He was accompanied over French territory by a squadron of French war planes, part of the biggest fighting air fleet in the world.

That probably made him think.

HE FLEW OVER the channel accompanied by British bombing planes, flying 6,000 feet above him. His father and mother met him, when he landed, with great affection.

He probably said to his father:

"We ought to have more fighting planes."

Somebody ought to say that to Uncle Sam.

SUNDAY BLUE LAW POLL TO OPEN

Sun-Telegraph to Determine Sentiment Here by Ballot To Every Voter in City

That legislators may know definitely how the citizens of Pittsburgh feel about the blue law of 1794, the Sun-Telegraph is going to conduct a city-wide poll of sentiment on Sunday observance.

Pick out people on the street at random, as the Sun-Telegraph has done, and ask them their attitude on this vexatious question, and majority sentiment will seem to be overwhelmingly in favor of modifying the Blue Law!

Canvass business and professional leaders, and the result will be the same.

LEGISLATORS INACTIVE

Yet the Blue Law, with its ban on innocent amusements such as concerts, movies and ball games, remains on the statute books.

Legislators appear unconvinced that the people wish a change.

The Sun-Telegraph proposes to ascertain public opinion in a way that will allow no one to doubt what it is. It is going to ask every registered voter in Pittsburgh what they think about the Sunday observance question. If Pittsburghers want the Blue Law to stand, the vote will show it; if they want it modified, the fact will be disclosed.

The controversy over the Blue Law has been on for 100 years. Those who advocate strict enforcement and those who favor relaxation are perpetually in conflict. Both sides are sincere, both are no doubt honestly of the belief that they represent majority opinion. Here is an opportunity to settle the matter without guesswork.

BALLOT TO BE SECRET

Every man and women whose name appears on the official Pittsburgh registry lists will receive shortly a postcard ballot from the Sun-Telegraph. The question will be clearly put.

The ballot will be secret. You do not sign your name. There will be no identification mark on the card except the number of the ward in which the voter lives.

It will be a much more complete and accurate poll than that taken by the Literary Digest on prohibition, for its 20,000,000 ballots have gone to only a little more than 50 per cent of the nation's qualified voters, and the others have had no opportunity to record their attitude, whereas in the Sun-Telegraph's poll every registered voter will be solicited and have a chance to express his or her opinion.

As the returns come in, complete tables of the vote, by wards, will be published.

Shanghai Trolley Men Go on Strike

LONDON, April 26.—(INS.)—Transportation was paralized in Shanghai, China, today when street car and omnibus workers went on strike, according to a Central News dispatch.

Communist agitators were responsible for the strike, the dispatch said. It was feared that the strike might spread to greater proportions.

MRS. DORIS MURRAY PALMER

DUAL SLAYING LAID TO ENVY

LAGUNA BEACH, Cal., April 26.—(INS.)—Envy and jealousy caused Mrs. Guy Bates Post to slay her former friend, Mrs. Doris Murray Palmer and end her own life.

That was the general opinion here today of the artists' colony. A coroner's jury, of which Stephen Chalmers, author, was foreman, returned a verdict of "murder and suicide."

It was pointed out that Mrs. Post saw honors formerly hers slipping to Mrs. Palmer, who was slated to become manager of the Community Players, a position held by Mrs. Post.

Authorities advanced opinion that Mrs. Post, realizing she was being supplanted by the younger woman, finally had an open break with her. Mrs. Post got her ivory-handled revolver and fired at her "best friend."

TAXI STOLEN DOWNTOWN, BURNED

Car Taken as Driver and Policeman Hunt Attackers After Barrage of Stones

A Yellow taxicab on its first trip out of the Ross street garage today was stolen from its operator in Grant street and driven to Bedford avenue, near the Municipal Hospital, and set afire.

A half hour after the theft the cab was found, the windows broken, the upholstering slashed and the body ablaze.

The theft occurred when the driver, L. Bethume, 28, and Patrolman William Dorsey, left the cab unguarded in Grant street, near Fifth avenue, and entered a restaurant to question two men suspected of stoning the taxi. Firemen from No. 26 Engine Company extinguished the blaze and the cab was towed to the company garage.

SHOWERED WITH STONES

Bethume said he was showered with stones as he passed a parking lot near Oliver avenue and Grant street. Calling to Patrolman Dorsey they entered the restaurant where they believed two suspects had sought refuge. In the restaurant they were unable to find the responsible parties and upon emerging to the street discovered the cab had been stolen.

Five men, alleged strike sympathizers, faced hearings today, three of them accused of interfering with the operation of taxicabs in the downtown district last night. Two others were arrested

Plane Burns, Flier Saved By Leap

CLEVELAND, April 26.—(AP.)—Henry J. Brown, flying the night mail from Cleveland to New York, stepped over the side and safely dropped 2,000 feet in his parachute when the motor of his plane went dead near Clearfield, Pa., early today.

The plane was destroyed by fire, and Brown managed to salvage only part of the mail, according to reports at the Cleveland airport.

Guggenheim's Kin Files Divorce Suit

RENO, Nev., April 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Jean Potter Soldwedel, stepdaughter of Harry F. Guggenheim, United States Ambassador to Cuba, filed suit for divorce in District Court here against Frederick Soldwedel, New York artist.

The papers in the case were sealed, but it was understood the charges were desertion and mental cruelty. Mrs. Soldwedel is the daughter of William Chapman Potter, noted mining engineer and at one time connected with the Guggenheim mining interests.

OHIO GOVERNOR TO FIX PRISON FIRE BLAME

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN, International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., April 26.—Bodies of more than 100 of the unclaimed victims of last Monday night's disastrous fire at Ohio State Penitentiary, which caused a death toll of 320 convicts, were to be buried shortly before noon today.

The white victims were to be laid to rest in Eastlawn Cemetery and the Negro victims in Evergreen Cemetery, a mile away.

Meanwhile, Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, refusing to suspend Warden Preston Thomas pending review of the report of the fire investigators, prepared to announce his decision—probably Monday.

TROOPS STILL ON GUARD

The possibility of an attempted jail "break" seemed remote this morning.

All prisoners are roaming behind the old gray stone walls of the institution. They flatly refuse to return to their cells or be locked up as long as Thomas is warden, but declare there will be no trouble if the Governor removes him.

Fully 1,000 troops continued to patrol the outer walls of the prison, however. While the convicts inside had quieted down somewhat they still were conducting a "passive resistance" campaign against Warden Preston

LONDON CHEERS ZEPPELIN

LONDON, April 26.—(INS.)—A German Zeppelin today zoomed across the London sky for the first time since the hectic war days, when the Graf Zeppelin appeared over Piccadilly Circus at 4:13 p. m. (10:13 p. m., eastern standard time).

The huge German airliner described a graceful circle over the city, dipping momentarily over Westminster Abbey.

As the silvery shape of the trans-Atlantic queen came into view, a mighty cheer roared from the thousands who lined the streets and office windows. Many of these same faces had cast harrowed glances at the sky in war days, ready to scamper underground at the first hum of Zeppelin motors that inevitably forecast a rain of bombs.

Eleven passengers and a crew of 41 are enjoying the Graf's maiden trip over England. Among the passengers are Lady Drummond Hay, who was a passenger on the airship's recent trans-Atlantic trip.

PARIS, April 26.—(INS.)—Her silver sides glistening in the full light of the noonday sun, the giant German dirigible arrived over Paris from Friedrichshafen at noon today (6 a. m., eastern standard time).

The Zeppelin circled the city several times, dropped a cargo of mails and then headed northward toward London.

Pat McDermott and Leader Of 'Red Shirt Gang' Tell 'Inside Story'

Pat McDermott, serving a life term for the slaying of Don Mellett, Canton editor, and Thomas Gerak, also under life sentence for murder, here tell the "inside story" of conditions in Company K, called the "Red Shirt Gang," and their versions of the convict revolt following the fire in the Ohio Penitentiary at Columbus. Their stories were told in exclusive interviews with Al Gough, Sun-Telegraph staff correspondent.

By PAT M'DERMOTT.

All we want is justice.

They keep us cooped up in these dinky little cells day after day, four of us in one little hole day and night. It's maddening.

There's only room for one man on the floor at a time. Look, here's all the room we have (pointing out the doubly barred and screened enclosure he and his three cellmates occupy next to death row in the "White City").

No Room to Walk

When one man walks for exercise—look, he can only walk back and forward in a five-foot space—the others have to go to bed.

And, believe me, as soon as one fellow has finished his exercising, the next man is up pronto for his. It's a hell of a thing for a healthy man to have to lay around all the time and spend most of his time lying down.

There's no squawking around here, either.

If a man's sick, the guards tell

The present situation created itself. It is not prearranged nor is it an organized movement on the part of a few ringleaders, as the prison officials would have it.

The men of Company K want the world to know that they have not been creating the disturbances attributed to them by certain prison officials.

If the warden will tell the truth, he will verify that these men were not released from their cells (and then only by permission of Deputy Warden Woodard) until three days after the fire. The time, to be exact, was 2 p. m. on April 24.

Crucial Moment

Prior to our release from the cage, as Company K is called, about 1,000 determined men rushed down to the doors of our

TWO BANDITS TAKE $1,000, ESCAPE

Pair Flees in Car Reported Stolen From Johnstown Man Two Hours Earlier

Two bandits held up J. H. Dillner, partner of the Dillner Transfer and Storage Company, 601 Melwood street, about 10:30 this morning, seized a $1,000 payroll which Dillner was carrying from a bank, and escaped.

The robbers fled in an automobile reported stolen about an hour before the holdup.

Dillner was carrying the payroll from the East End Savings and Trust Company. As he drove his car in the 500 block of Melwood street, the bandits drove their machine in front of him and forced his car into the curb.

THREATENED BY GUNS

Then the robbers leaped onto the running board of Dillner's machine, pointed guns at him and told him to hand over the money. Dillner turned over to them the payroll which he had in his side coat pocket, wrapped in a newspaper.

IN STOLEN CAR

Dillner obtained the license number on the bandits' car, Pennsylvania HP-930. About an hour before the robbery Frank Lobash, of Johnstown, reported to police that his car bearing Pennsylvania license HP-930 had been stolen at Baum boulevard and Whitfield street.

Police believe that, after stealing Lobash's car, the robbers drove to Melwood street and lay in wait for Dillner and the payroll.

COLLIER SUNK BY U. S. LINER

HAMBURG, April 26.—(AP.)—The American liner President Harding, inward bound and making for the mouth of the Elbe River, collided in a fog off Heligoland this morning with the British collier Kirkwood which sank.

The President Harding rescued all of the Kirkwood's crew with the exception of one fireman who was missing.

The President Harding, proceeding to Hamburg, found the fog so dense that she was compelled to anchor off Elbe Light Ship No. 1.

No one was injured aboard the American liner. Damage to her was slight. The President Harding continued under her own steam toward Hamburg where she was expected to arrive later in the afternoon.

The North German Lloyd liner Bremen Thursday collided with the British Grenadier five miles off Dungeness, in a similar dense fog.

Robbers Loot Till Of Gasoline Station

Robbers entered the gasoline station of J. H. Dawnes, 1968 East Ohio street, and obtained $27.80 from the cash register, he reported to police today. Entrance was effected by forcing open a front door.

'Politics' Disliked By Mrs. McCormick

BALTIMORE, April 26.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick favors substitution of the term "public service" for "politics." She explained to Goucher College girls:

"If politicians were called public servants I believe it would have a very good psychological effect. People are so used to thinking that politics are corrupt and politicians dishonorable that I believe a change in the terms would be a big help."

Lindbergh in Miami Set For Hop to Havana

MIAMI, Fla., April 26.—(INS.)—A Pan-American Airways amphibian plane was groomed and ready today to carry Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to Havana, where he will take off tomorrow on an inaugural air mail flight to Latin America.

Lindbergh plans to leave this afternoon, spend the night at Havana, and take off there early tomorrow with Porto Cabezas, Nicaragua, as his first refueling point.

From Porto Cabezas he will proceed to Cristobal, Canal Zone, his air mail destination. The mail will be taken to Chile and on to Buenos Aires.

The trans-Atlantic flier landed on Pan-American Airport at 4:45 p. m. yesterday after a 990-mile flight from Washington in the low-winged Lockheed Sirius monoplane in which he and Mrs. Lindbergh spanned the continent in record time recently.

Lindbergh, according to present plans, will remain in Cristobal until his return flight to Miami next Thursday.

Serious headwinds slowed the Colonel's progress yesterday, reducing the speed of his plane to an average of 137 miles an hour.

HOOVER OPPOSES $110,000,000 WATERWAY PROJECTS

SENATE BLOC ALSO FIGHTS HOUSE BILL

President, Seeking Economy, Plans to Limit Spending To $60,000,000 Yearly

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The future of the $110,000,000 rivers and harbors bill, passed by the House late yesterday, was clouded today as a result of President Hoover's economy warning and the opposition to the Erie-Oswego canals of both the President and a western Senate group.

While Mr. Hoover was letting it be known at the White House he would limit rivers and harbors expenditures to approximately $60,000,000 annually, the House was rolling through the bill.

An unsuccessful fight was made by Western groups to strike a provision from the bill authorizing the Federal government to acquire the Erie and Oswego canals from New York state on the ground this would delay the St. Lawrence waterways.

HOOVER TO LIMIT WORK

Representatives of upper Mississippi River states tried to write a nine-foot channel authorization in the bill, but failed.

The same opposition is expected to be carried forward in the Senate, with the added warning from Mr. Hoover that he will not approve rivers and harbors "pork barrel" proposals.

The President, it was made known, will appoint a commission to review all projects and limit work to the most urgent projects.

A limitation of $60,000,000, it was pointed out, represents an increase in the annual outlay for this purpose, which has generally been about $50,000,000. Rivers and harbors enthusiasts, however, expected the gate to be thrown open because of Mr. Hoover's strong advocacy of inland waterways.

PENNSYLVANIA AFFECTED

The House bill includes these projects:

Federal acquisition of the Illinois waterway, improvement of the Allegheny and Youghiogheny rivers, Pennsylvania; Kanawha River, West Virginia; expenditure of $15,000,000 on the Upper Missouri; completion of a nine-foot channel on the Mississippi from St. Louis to Grafton, Ill., and surveys of the Beaver, Mahoning and Shenango rivers, of Pennsylvania and Ohio.

KLINE SHIELDS STAND ON TWO CANDIDATES

Mum on Attitude Toward Both Sullivan and Riley After Secret Conference

Doubt exists today whether Mayor Charles H. Kline will extend support to Congressman P. J. Sullivan's candidacy for re-election in the Thirty-fourth District and P. F. Riley's candidacy for state senator from the Thirty-eighth District.

Both candidates called upon Kline yesterday, supposedly to get assurance of support, but the Mayor refused to tell interviewers his attitude.

Sullivan, who supported Kline in his last mayoralty campaign, is opposed by P. J. O'Malley, of the state auditor general's office. O'Malley and his sponsor, State Senator James J. Coyne, also were potent in Kline's re-election.

MALONE TO BE FACTOR

Sullivan is believed to have the support of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, bitter political foe of Coyne.

Considerable interest centers on the attitude of James F. Malone, former president of Council, whose ward, the Fifth, is in Sullivan's congressional district. Sullivan and Coyne opposed Malone when he ran for mayor last fall against Kline. Malone is expected to return tomorrow from a business trip to Havana, Cuba, and may state his position in the local contest and the state fight.

KLINE IN DILEMMA

Riley aspires to succeed Senator M. G. Leslie, who withdrew as a candidate for re-election after the race was complicated by the entry of Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., son of Commissioner Armstrong.

Evidently, Kline is in a dilemma in being forced to decide upon supporting Riley or the son of a man prominently identified with every step in Kline's rise to political prominence.

BROWN RAPS GRUNDY ON LABOR AID

Denies Senator's Claim of Pushing Workers' Bills in Speech to Women Voters

PHILADELPHIA, April 26—(AP.)—Five candidates for the United States Senate and four aspirants for the governorship faced a thousand or more members of the Pennsylvania League of Women Voters and told them what they stand for in the Pennsylvania primary campaign.

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination, made a 68-minute airplane trip from Washington to attend the meeting.

Francis Shunk Brown, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, denied assertions by Senator Grundy that the latter and his friends had been instrumental in drafting the state workmen's compensation act and the women's and children's labor laws.

GRUNDY CLAIM DISPUTED

Brown asserted the Grundy forces had tried to prevent passage of the measures.

Grundy, the first speaker, said Pennsylvania manufacturers had been sympathetic with and helped to draft the workmen's compensation act and laws affecting women and children in industry. He said:

"We believe juveniles in a vast number of instances are better off in factories than they are in their homes. The modern factory is constructed from a health standpoint. We believe juveniles should be permitted to get into business while young, so they can grow up to responsible positions, because you cannot depend on immigrant labor under our immigration laws.

"If manufacturers are going to maintain the present wage scale, which is very high in proportion to the wages paid in other industries, the hours of employment cannot be shortened. We cannot have both the penny and the cake."

PINCHOT DRY AS EVER

Sedgwick Kistler, of Clinton County, unopposed for the Democratic senatorial nomination, urged a strong minority in Pennsylvania as a check and spur on the majority.

Francis Bohlen, anti-prohibition candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination, said the wets want the state to control the sale of alcoholic liquor.

Webster Garfield Drew, Republican senatorial candidate, said he favored a protective tariff and the reduction of child labor. He also said he is opposed to entangling alliances in foreign affairs.

Former Gov. Gifford Pinchot said he is just as dry as ever.

WET VOTE URGED

Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., wet Republican candidate for governor, declared that the May primary gives the voters an opportunity to register their protest against the "ignoble experiment" of prohibition.

John M. Hemphill, unopposed Democratic candidate for governor, told the women that "there is not a Republican in the state with whom he will fuse at the general election."

Davis, discussing the tariff, said he was a strict protectionist. He called attention to his accomplishments as secretary of labor under three presidents.

COOPER TO FIX FIRE BLAME

Thomas, whose removal is demanded.

Order has not yet been restored inside the penitentiary, as the convicts refuse to obey the prison rules unless a new warden is placed in charge. Various meetings are being held by the convicts. One committee of eight convicts put in a demand for a federal investigation of the fire and conduct of the prison. Guards transmitted the demand to penitentiary officials.

COOPER STUDIES REPORT

The Governor today was considering the report and recommendations of the board of inquiry which he appointed to investigate the fire and fix the blame for the disaster.

After hearing the testimony of prison officials, guards, fire survivors and other witnesses for four days, the investigating committee adjourned its sessions late yesterday.

Conflicting testimony was given by the guards on duty when the fire broke out. Practically all of them agreed that delay in opening the cell doors leading to the fire-scourged G and H block was responsible for the tremendous loss of life. None of them would take the blame for the delay. All were agreed considerable confusion prevailed.

GUARD CAPTAIN BLAMED

The final witnesses before the investigating committee were John Hall, the 72-year-old captain of the night guards; Hubert L. Richardson and Thomas Watkinson, day guards, who were going off duty when the fire broke out, and Guards W. C. Baldwin and Thomas Little, of the night staff.

Watkinson blamed Hall for delaying the opening of the cell doors where 800 prisoners were trapped. He insisted that Hall said "Wait awhile." This was denied by Hall. He testified he had no authority to issue orders to the day guards.

The committee indicated surprise when Richardson testified that at no time during the fire was the cage door leading to G and H cell block locked. All other testimony was that the door was locked and that this fact resulted in death to so many convicts in this tier.

Baldwin and Little insisted every one of the dead prisoners could have been saved if the door leading to G and H cell block had been opened promptly. They testified there was a delay of from seven to ten minutes.

Court Sets May 2 To Hear Moon Motor Suit

WILMINGTON, April 26.—The eight new directors of Moon Motor Car Company, who are purported to have been elected at the special meeting of stockholders in St. Louis, April 7, were granted an additional week's time by Chancery Court here to file an answer to a suit instituted recently by two stockholders who are contesting the legality of their election and asking the court to hold that they are not entitled to office. The answer must be filed by May 2.

AMEN CORNER HOLDS DINNER

The Amen Corner will give its annual dinner at the William Penn Hotel tonight. It is an event that brings together outstanding figures in politics and business from many counties.

A luncheon was tendered the honor guests and speakers at midday. John J. Murray, retiring president of the Amen Corner, presided. Sitting with him were William Hard, the writer, who reported the London naval parley for the National Broadcasting Company, and who is to speak tonight on the same subject; Walter C. Kelly, famous as the "Virginia Judge;" Joe Cunningham, cartoonist and columnist; Dr. George J. Rockwell, editor of the comic magazine, "The Mustard Plaster;" Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, who will be toastmaster, city and county officials.

PARKER DEFEAT SEEN BY FOES

WASHINGTON, April 26.—(AP.)—Enough votes to reject the nomination of Judge John J. Parker as an associate justice of the Supreme Court were claimed today by the Senate group which is opposing his confirmation.

Administration leaders refused to admit defeat, but frankly conceded that a hard, up-hill battle was in prospect. A move to have President Hoover withdraw the nomination, to which vigorous objection has been raised by labor and Negro organizations, was supported by some members of the regular Republican bloc.

Taking up the Parker case on Monday, opposing forces in the Senate will come to grips with a Supreme Court nomination at stake for the second time within a few months. In February a bitter battle was waged over the appointment of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice, and a vote of confirmation was obtained only after a rapidly growing opposition had threatened to bring about the rejection of the nomination.

Model on Coast Hike Due to Arrive Here

Miss Dorothy S. Rancis, 29, an artist model, today is marching westward toward Pittsburgh, engaged in a coast-to-coast hike which she expects to end in September. The young woman arrived in East Pittsburgh late yesterday and told police of that borough that she was hiking because she believed it the best way to retain her complexion and figure. She expects to remain in Pittsburgh tonight, continuing her journey in the morning.

MATE IN CELL, TAKES POISON

"Just one bad break after another."

Thus, Frances Firth, 19-year-old bride of six months, who swallowed poison when she learned of the arrest of her young husband on a theft charge, explained her action.

At the Presbyterian Hospital where she was taken from her home, 1201 Sheffield street, Mrs. Firth is recovering and is "sort of glad she is alive."

Her husband, Nelson Firth, 19, was held for court at a hearing in Morals Court, following an alleged unsuccessful attempt to holdup Dallas Welsh, of Canton, O., in Sheffield street, Saturday night.

Mr. Firth said her husband has been out of work since their marriage, and that she obtained work.

TAXICAB FIRED AFTER THEFT

Accused of having attempted to wreck a taxicab with their automobile while both machines were traveling in Grant street last night, Vincent Geneski, 23, of 3207 Niagara street, and August Joerger, 22, of 3919 Cabinet street, were arrested. The pair were picked up in Grant street at Third avenue, on complaint of M. M. Haymond, the cab driver, police say.

JAILED AS ATTACKER

Frank Goldbaugh, 29, of 1733 Forbes street, was arrested last midnight near the City-County Building. Police say he was molesting cab drivers.

Two men accused of hurling bricks at cabs were discharged this morning at hearings before Magistrate Ray Schneider in the North Side Police Station. They were William Fichley, 41, of 1343 Spring Garden avenue, and Frank Teresi, 27, of 831 Congress street. Abram Brown, a driver, of 93 North Duane avenue, Bellevue, and Carl McCreery, of 705 Ridge avenue, accused Fichley and Teresi, but had no witnesses to corroborate their charges.

Man Disappears, Police Start Hunt

Police and detectives today were searching for V. J. Wagner, 28, of 171 Balph avenue, Bellevue, who disappeared at noon yesterday after starting for a downtown bank. Wagner works in a printing office in Bigelow boulevard and at noon left his office to go to a bank, planning to arrange a loan. He failed to return.

GUESTS TAKEN IN RUM RAID

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Nine male patrons of the Hollywood Restaurant, a popular Broadway night club, today were under charges of possession of liquor, the first night club guests to be so charged in a federal prohibition raid in New York.

A group of men and women agents mingled with the after-theater crowd in the restaurant, located in the heart of the Times Square district, last night, and singled out the nine who they charged had liquor at their tables.

The nine, all in evening clothes and accompanied by women, were taken to the West Forty-seventh street police station where they were charged with possessing liquor and released under bail.

Action Postponed On Voters' List

Action was delayed by the Board of Registration Commissioners last night on the petition to have 1,600 names stricken from the Third Ward voting list. The petition was made by the elections committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association. A score of those whose right to vote was in question were present at the hearing, but owing to the absence of an accountant, whose expert testimony was needed, no action was taken.

Attorneys Donald C. Anderson and Lawrence D. Blair, who represented the bar association committee, consented to a postponement after questioning about a dozen persons.

Tacoma Delegates Guests of Chamber

Officials of the Chamber of Commerce today were to be guests to 37 business and utility heads of Tacoma, Wash., who were to arrive here this morning on their way to the convention of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in Washington next week. They were to leave tonight following a tour of the industrial district.

Agents Seize Rum In Raids on Clubs

Six barrels of wine and 1,042 pints of home brew were confiscated by prohibition agents in a raid on the Owls Club, Baldwin street, Bridgeville, the agents reported.

Three men, arrested in the raid, who gave their names as Zelando Cimaralli, 27; Joseph Schullek, 24, and Henry M. Walsh, 35, were held in bond, according to the raiders.

In a raid on a club at 1801 Beaver avenue, 10 cases of home brew and four pints of whisky were confiscated, raiders said.

Truck Driver Held After Fleeing Crash

Samuel McRoberts, of Parnassus, truck driver, was arrested today by highway patrolmen when a truck which he was driving collided with a sedan driven by John Romonik, 858 Fifth avenue, Brackenridge, in Springdale. McRoberts, according to Highway Patrolman F. R. Clark, had been traveling on the left-hand side of the street at high speed and attempted to flee following the collision. Romonik was slightly cut.

Aged Man Commits Suicide by Hanging

Worker Dies in Fall From Span Scaffold

H. K. Hilpert, 30, of 6600 Penn avenue, a rigger employed by the American Bridge Company, was killed late yesterday in a fall from a scafford while working on the Union Railroad Bridge over the Monongahela River, at Port Perry, according to a morgue report. Before the victim fell into the stream his head struck a girder of the span, fracturing his skull, the report stated.

McKeesport Police Hunt Store Bandits

McKeesport police today were searching for four masked and armed youths who held up and robbed the confectionery of J. M. Reckley, 623 Versailles avenue, McKeesport, last night. The bandits obtained $50 from a cash drawer and 40 cents from Reckley's pockets. They escaped in an automobile, police were told.

Police Fail in Hunt For Store Robber

Duquesne police today had found no trace of the robber who yesterday obtained $15 in a holdup of the South Duquesne Pharmacy, at 600 South Duquesne avenue, Duquesne. The thug, who escaped in an automobile, forced the clerk into a rear room.

POLITICAL ROW STIRS MEETING

The Republican organization of Turtle Creek which met to indorse local candidates had a hectic session last night and Burgess George J. Donaldson, blamed for disturbing the gathering, today found himself running for a seat in the State Legislature from the Tenth district, without the indorsement of the Republican group.

Daniel Black, of Turtle Creek, presided over the meeting which was held in the borough hall. Burgess Donaldson is said to have declared himself for Senator Grundy. An argument arose and finally led to one of the borough policemen being called to restore quiet.

The organization rebelled at the Grundy indorsement, it was said. The four legislative candidates to receive the support of the Republican organization were John Frances, of Forest Hills; Frank Riddle, of Turtle Creek; Arthur Storer, of Elizabeth, and James H. McClure, of Glassport. In all, 16 legislative candidates are in the field for Republican nominations in the Tenth district.

2 Brothers Killed, Third Shot in 'Pig'

NEW YORK, April 26.—(INS.)—Bad bootleg liquor was blamed today for the killing of two brothers and the probably fatal shooting of a third brother by a youth who entered an alleged speakeasy twirling a revolver. While an automatic piano banged away in a back room, the youth opened fire when told to put away his weapon.

David Beadle, 22, was arrested and held for the murders. Lawrence and Michael Lawlor were fatally shot and the third brother, William, was not expected to recover.

Four in Vote Fraud Face Terms of Year

CHICAGO, April 26.—(INS.)—Maximum sentences of one year in the county jail today wait three election judges and one clerk who were convicted here yesterday for contempt of court in connection with alleged fraud at the November, 1928, election. All were charged with altering ballots and making false returns.

Three of those sentenced, Peter Marsala, Samuel Russ and Michael Castcio, were judges in the Forty-second Ward. The other, James Sinatro, was a clerk in the same district.

SEIPEL SEIZED BY ASSASSIN

VIENNA, April 26.—(INS.)—Ex-Chancellor Ignaz Seipel barely escaped assassination today when an unidentified man hurled himself upon the statesman, attempted to strangle him with bare hands.

Passersby seized the assailant and dragged him away. Authorities stated he apparently was demented.

Police grilled the man to determine whether he was the tool of a band of conspirators, but it appeared he had acted independently.

Shoot Into Dancers; 5 Killed, 20 Wounded

BELGRADE, April 26.—(INS.)—Five persons were killed and 20 wounded, six of them seriously, when an unidentified troop of military fired a volley into a crowd dancing before the town church in the village of Zidilje today.

Reports filtering through did not furnish the details that brought on the tragedy.

Fahy, Flight Record Holder, Crash Victim

GRAYLING, Mich., April 26.—(AP.)—Herbert J. Fahy, holder of the solo endurance flight record, was critically injured when the airplane he was piloting turned over the on the estate of Cliff Durant, near Roscommon, Mich.

His wife, a prominent West Coast aviatrix, was riding in the cabin, separated by a compartment from her husband, and escaped injury. Fahy suffered a fractured skull and other injuries. Fahy established a record of 36 hours and 52 minutes solo flying near Los Angeles last May.

5 Communists Held Following Battle

LOS ANGELES, April 26.—(INS.)—Five members of the Communist party were under arrest here today following a battle with police and high school students.

The battle began when some of the students sought to chase the Communists, who were making speeches and distributing pamphlets, from the Roosevelt High School grounds. One student was injured and several officers were scratched and bruised during the ensuing melee.

Record of First Congress Cited in Estate Claim

FAIRBURRY, Neb., April 26.—(AP.)—Musty records of the first Continental Congress may prove the right of Mrs. Abigal Hillegas Moles, 87, of Fairburry, to a share of a $7,000,000 heritage which dates back to Revolutionary War days, she believes.

Mrs. Moles, great-granddaughter of Michael Hillegas, first treasurer of the United States, said that amount represents accrued interest and principal of a loan made to the First Congress by her great-grandfather, in 1775. She and William Hillegas, 89, her brother, of Jackson, O., are the only direct descendants of the war-time treasurer, C. W. Samms, of Hastings, Neb., her son-in-law, said today.

Samms, who for several years has investigated the descendants' claims, has been unable to find any government record of repayment of the loan.

The face of Hillegas adorns the first issue of the $10 gold certificate, issued during the Roosevelt regime.

Briton, 73, Father of 8, Married to Fourth Wife

LONDON, April 26.—(AP.)—Will Thorne, 73, who has been in the House of Commons for 25 years and is one of the characters of that body, today married for the fourth time, his bride being Miss Beatrice Nelly Collins, 42, one of his constituents.

"I have had three wives, and they have all been jolly good ones," declared the bridegroom. "Married life is all right if you pull together.

"My friends have been telling me that I am silly to get married again in my time of life, but I utterly disagree with them. Of course, in this marriage we are not thinking so much of the children as of ourselves. If I died, my children, although they are grown up, would have no real home. Now they will."

Thorne's family of six daughters and two sons knew nothing of their father's intentions until three weeks ago, when he told them of his engagement. The bride's brother recently married one of Thorne's daughters by his first wife.

Michigan Family Evicted From Milk Wagon Home

KALAMAZOO, Mich., April 26.—(AP.)—Today is a sad day for the Robinson family, Earl and Pansy and their two children, for they are to be evicted from their home and the little family group broken up.

Times have been hard. Earl has been ill and unable to get a steady job. He managed to make enough to hold the family together by gathering up junk from the city dump, from kindly citizens, from city officials, selling it to dealers in that sort of merchandise. But now the orders have come for the Robinsons to move out of their home. Welfare workers are going to send the two children to an "institution."

It's hard to leave the old home, even if it is only an abandoned milk wagon with dry goods boxes for bed and table, resting on the banks of the old Kalamazoo River.

LENIN'S WIDOW THREATENED WITH PISTOL BY STALIN

As City Council Questions Employment of Husbands and Wives

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH SHOEMAKER

DR. JAMES S. HAMMERS DR. KATHERINE WISEMAN DR. JOHN WISEMAN

Dr. Hammers, talking with Wiseman and his wife, also a doctor, believes that the Mayview City hospital would suffer if husbands and wives working together were separated.

MR. AND MRS. DENNIS QUIGG

Mr. and Mrs. Quigg, employed at the city hospital, who will be affected if council abandons practice.

BAN ON COUPLES OPPOSED

Thirty-eight married couples, many of whom have worked side by side for a number of years at the City Hospital, at Mayview, view with alarm today the attitude of council in questioning the feasibility of having husbands and wives on the city payroll.

Dr. James S. Hammers, director of the institution, who asked that before acting, council give a hearing, believes he would hardly be able to carry on without them. He said:

"They form in the main the basis of our staff—being experienced, competent, and on the job or within call 24 hours a day. Their entire lives are wrapped up in the institution.

"Perhaps our type of hospital is peculiar and differs some from the ordinary one. Married couples who can work together are considered extremely desirable. They are at a premium.

"Dissolution would seriously hamper our work, perhaps disorganize us. We hope our group will be excepted, if such a rule is passed."

KIN OF CAPONE FACES PRISON

CHICAGO, April 26.—(INS.)—Found guilty of violating the Federal income tax laws, Ralph Capone, brother of the notorious Alphonse, today faces a prison sentence.

Should the maximum sentence be imposed for each of the seven counts it is possible for Capone to get a sentence of 42 years. A $10,000 fine is also possible.

Federal Judge Wilkerson, before whom a jury returned the verdict last night, deferred sentence until May 16, when Capone will plead for a new trial.

Capone's case will be followed by the income tax trials against Terry Druggan, Frankie Lake and Frank Nittix, alleged gangsters.

Although the defendant had informed the government he was practically penniless, an investigation disclosed that he maintained large bank accounts under assumed names, it was brought out at the trial.

Capone had deposited amounts totaling nearly $2,000,000 over a period of five years, it was shown.

Michaelson Vote To Be Contested

CHICAGO, April 26.—(INS.)—James C. Moreland today asserted that he will contest Congressman M. A. Michaelson's nomination for Congress from the Seventh District, on the Republican ticket.

Michaelson, known as a dry-voting congressman, was involved in a "leaky trunk" incident last year when several bottles of liquor were found in a trunk at Jacksonville, Fla. He was tried at Key West, Fla., for illegal possession, but was acquitted when Walter Gramm, a brother-in-law, admitted possession of the trunk.

Sleuth, Tunney's Brother, Found In Coma

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—A passerby noticed a man slumped over the wheel of an automobile on West Thirty-third street. Thinking he had discovered a victim of a gang slaying, the passerby called police headquarters.

A squad of plain-clothes men speeded to the scene, to find that the man was not dead, but in a coma, and that he was Detective Thomas Tunney, brother of James J. Tunney, former heavyweight champion.

Recovering, Tunney explained he had suffered a severe attack of indigestion and had pulled up at the curb before dropping into semi-consciousness.

Weather Conditions.

Pressure continues relatively high, but decreasing over the lake region, the central valleys and the southern states east of the Mississippi, while it is low over the plateau region and off the North Pacific Coast. Rain has fallen over the western plains, the West Gulf states and eastward over the southern plains to Southern Illinois. Light to heavy frosts occurred over the Ohio valley and southward to Tennessee and Western North Carolina and heavy to killing frosts in the lake region, but the decrease in pressure in the lake high indicates a gradual warming up over the central valleys and most of the eastern states during the next 48 hours.

Grant's Orderly, 99, Observes Birthday

CHICAGO, April 26.—(INS.)—Joseph Pincus, who served for two years during the Civil War as an orderly for Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, celebrated his ninety-ninth birthday here today.

Pincus was born in Germany and came here at the age of 24.

SPROUL LOSES AUTO, WMBJ

Evangelist John W. Sproul today was minus his high-powered coupe, seized by a constable yesterday while a deputy sheriff auctioned the preacher's radio broadcasting station WMBJ, in Frankstown road, Penn Township, for unsettled debts to five creditors.

The seizure was made in front of Sproul's home, 6938 Thomas boulevard, by Deputy Constable Jacob Mintz, of the Fourteenth Ward, and former pugilist, to satisfy a wage claim of $300. Judgment was issued in that amount by Alderman Sol S. Goldstein, of 1919 Murray avenue, upon action brought by Sproul's radio operator, W. E. Horebeck.

The broadcasting equipment, aside from the towers and aerials, was auctioned to creditors for $900 by Deputy Sheriff Herman B. Purlong. Bidding was furnished by interests of Mrs. Margaret Boyd, of Philadelphia, aunt of the evangelist, against the creditors. The purchase was made in the names of Kenneth Cunningham, attorney, Eli Abbott and Walter Eichley, who also represented J. M. Luterman and Al Hirsh, creditors. It was stated the purchasers will seek a license to operate a commercial station.

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—Married in 1908 when she was 14 years old, Mrs. Della V. Toomey told Judge Joseph Sabath that her husband had beaten her 1,132 times in the intervening 22 years.

That was often enough, Judge Sabath ruled without a recount, to warrant a divorce.

2 DEAD, AUTO DRIVERS HELD

Two automobile drivers today were to post bond with the coroner, pending inquests into deaths of two victims of automobile accidents. The drivers are Earl Uher, of 2133 Penn avenue, New Castle, and Bernard Onuser, of 804 Lewis street, North Braddock. According to reports at the County Morgue, Uher's machine struck and killed Lucille Suto, 5, of 198 Beaver road, Leetsdale, late yesterday. Onuser's machine is said to have struck a milk wagon in North Braddock Tuesday, fatally injuring Marko Evosazick, 22, of 23 Prospect avenue, Turtle Creek.

Chester Kawcsinski, 11, of 3819 Mintwood street, today was in a critical condition in the Mercy Hospital. He was struck by an automobile in Strawberry way, near Liberty avenue, last night. Police arrested Harry Fisher, 22, of 3006 Kenneth square, alleged driver.

'RED SHIRTS' IN CELL

FRANK MYERS

JACK YOUNG PAT M'DERMOTT HAROLD NIERENGARTEN

Myers, Young, McDermott and Nierengarten, members of Company K, the "Red Shirt Gang" of the Ohio penitentiary, responsible for "passive revolt" among prisoners. Myers said in a statement to the Sun-Telegraph that "they blame everything on us, but we are not the bad men they want us to be." Young, as well, as McDermott is a "lifer." Meyers is in for burglary.

him he must be wrong. If a man complains and insists upon being taken to the doctor, he may find himself in "The Hole" (solitary confinement) instead.

In Fear of 'Hole'

One night when I got sick I asked for something and the guard, instead of taking me out of my cell to a doctor or bringing me some medicine, asked me:

"Where do you think you are? In a swell hotel? Roll over and sit on your pain. You'll go nowhere tonight except the hole if you don't keep quiet."

"The Hole"—terror of every man in the prison—sounds rather like a form of medieval punishment rather than part of the equipment of an up-to-date state institution.

I've been in "The Hole" my share of the time in the three years I've been in this prison. For 15 months I have been right here in this Company K, having been classified as one of the "badmen" since the time when I and a couple of fellow convicts climbed out through a hole in the roof in trying to make our escape.

Shackled Six Months

When I first came here I sort of resigned myself to my fate, having been sentenced for a lifetime, but after more than a year of it, I decided nothing could be any worse than the hell I had endured, so I joined with the others.

We were caught on the roof and for six months afterwards I was shackled to my bed in Company K with other "desperate characters."

They would have blamed the fire on us if they could, but none of us were out that day, so there must be some more "badmen" around loose among the other prisoners if what the guards and what Warden Thomas says is true.

Bishop McConnell Heads Old Age Group

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the New York area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was re-elected president of the National Conference on Old Age Security at its third annual session here. James H. Maurer, of Reading, Pa., was chosen a member of the new executive committee.

Radio Singer Safe In Cleveland, Hunt Ends

Search for Miss Helen Baird, 30, radio singer, of 222 Emerson street, was halted last night when the woman telephoned her relatives here from Cleveland, O., saying that she was safe. Members of her family feared that she had been abducted.

Miss Baird, who, it is said, suffered a lapse of memory from overwork and the strain of her duties as a choir singer at a North Side church during the Lenten season, disappeared Thursday afternoon. Police broadcast her description throughout the state when her disappearance was reported.

Relatives left last night for Cleveland to accompany her home.

cells. They were determined to liberate us from the cage by force.

It was a crucial moment.

Deputy Warden Woodard was present and he took me out of my cell where I could be seen and heard by all the men.

I told them that we did not want to be released by violence. I pointed out to them the futility of bloodshed and what might happen if they carried out their plans.

Violence Opposed

I urged them to let us be released by peaceful means and actual authority.

All the men have adopted an attitude of "passive resistance," and I want to state that we in Company K are with them to the limit so long as there is no violence.

We want the world to see us as we really are, not as the dangerous, ferocious and notorious convicts we have been painted by the warden and some others.

Merseles Estate Set at $6,891,444

The gross estate was listed as $11,750,000, but deductions, including debts, brought it down almost $5,000,000. The widow and two sons are the beneficiaries. Merseles died on March 7, 1929.

REPEAL LEADS IN BRADDOCK

NEW YORK, April 26.—(INS.)—Two Pennsylvania towns, Braddock and Shamokin, were among those favoring repeal of present dry laws, while Warren, O., balloted "bone" dry, according to an incomplete analysis of the vote in several cities announced today in the Literary Digest prohibition poll.

The returns showed:

GUN FLASHED IN DISPUTE ON POLICY

Other Russ Officials Quickly Disarm Communist Chief, Saving Woman From Harm

LONDON, April 26.—Reports of a sensational incident involving Josef Stalin, chairman of the Central Executive Committee of the Communist party, and the widow of Nikolai Lenin, leader of the Bolshevist movement in Soviet Russia, were contained in a dispatch from Riga to the London Daily News today.

The incident occurred, according to the dispatch, when Mme. Lenin sought to criticize Stalin's policy of collectivization. The Communist chief, according to the reports, drew a revolver and threatened to shoot Mme. Lenin.

WEAPON SEIZED

Several other Communist leaders were present during the altercation between Stalin and the widow of the man chiefly responsible for overthrow of the imperial regime in Russia.

One of them quickly snatched the weapon from Stalin's hand, the report declared, while another escorted Mme. Lenin from the room.

Stalin recently modified the collectivization policy which he inaugurated some time ago. This policy provided for the creation of collective farms, and during its early stages demanded the enforced participation of thousands of peasants.

Due to lack of sufficient machinery and farm implements to make widespread collectivization possible immediately, Stalin rescinded many of his original orders and ordained peasants could not be forced to participate in collective labor unless they wished to.

ARGUE OVER POLICIES

He anounced a few days ago that collectivization was proceeding normally although at a greatly retarded rate of speed. Observers recently have compared Stalin's collectivization activities to the new economic policy or "nep" inaugurated by Lenin a short time before his death.

According to the reports, however, Mme. Lenin was emphasizing the differences between Lenin's doctrines and Stalin's policies when the incident occurred.

PLACE BLAME IN SHIP DEATHS

NEW YORK, April 26.—(INS)—Crowded lifeboats and inexpertly tied life preservers were blamed today for the loss of 16 lives in the burning of the freighter Thames off Stamford, Conn. Only 10 of the crew were saved, according to a checkup by authorities today.

The Thames was 27 years old and when the fire, the origin of which was not determined, broke out the ship burned like paper. Many of the deck hands, hastily recruited and without sea experience, tied life preservers on in such a manner they were washed away shortly after the wearers jumped into the water, investigators said. Others lost their lives when crowded lifeboats capsized in a heavy sea.

None of the bodies of the 16 men believed burned to death or drowned has been recovered.

Pair in Girl's Death To Return to Erie

NORWICH, N. Y., April 26.—(AP.)—Ralph Mumbulo and his wife, Edna, wanted in Erie, Pa., on charges of murder in the burning to death of the man's daughter, Hilda, 11, will be returned to Erie Monday.

This decision was reached at a conference of defense attorneys and the local district attorney. A habeas corpus hearing scheduled for today at Oneonta, the second one in the case, will not be held. Gov. Roosevelt some time ago signed the extradition papers. The child was burned fatally March 22. The couple was arrested near here April 5.

3 Workmen Killed In Oil Plant Blast

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., April 26.—(AP.)—Three workmen were burned to death and a fourth injured in a still explosion at the Texas Company refinery here late yesterday. The dead are Claude Broussard, P. Kebodaux and C. C. Winburn. Rene Herbert was injured. Buildings within a radius of two miles were shaken by the blast.

Wales in London Relates Jungle Adventures

LONDON, April 26.—(INS.)—Bronzed and fit from his hunting trip in the African jungles, the Prince of Wales resumed his unadventurous English life today.

After spending several hours regaling members of the royal family at Windsor Palace with an account of his trip, the Prince returned to his London home, York House, St. James Palace, where he was given a royal reception by his servants and equerries.

He will shortly leave London for his new country residence, Fort Belvidere, Sunningdale, Surrey, which adjoins his favorite golf course. The country house was completely done over and modernized during his absence.

There was considerable speculation today as to whether the motion picture films of wild life made during the Prince's trip would be shown to the public. Arrangements have been made for a private showing to members of the Prince's family and his friends.

Lion Saves Life of Trainer Attacked by Tiger

KOKOMO, Ind., April 26.—(AP.)—Prince, giant lion and veteran circus trouper, saved the life of his trainer, who was attacked by a tiger here.

Clyde Beatty, 25, of Chillicothe, O., said to be the youngest animal trainer in the profession, was conducting a dress rehearsal preparing for the opening show of the season, when Trudy, a new tiger, knocked him down, ripped open his side and bit his arm.

The giant Prince, one of 32 lions and tigers in the cage with Beatty, hurled his huge bulk against the tiger, knocking Trudy across the arena, where he bit and chewed the cat's side.

Beatty, whose arm was torn, succedeed in driving the animals from the cage before collapsing. Other trainers intervened to save Trudy's life, and Beatty was taken to a local hospital.

Daylight Time Affects Church Hours

Dr. J. W. Claudy, executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Council of the Churches of Christ, today called attention of church-goers to the change in time which becomes effective in Pittsburgh at 2 a. m. tomorrow. He urged everybody to turn their clocks one hour ahead upon retiring tonight, in order that they will be able to reach church on time, instead of one hour late, as had been the case in many times in years past.

Each year the change in time has resulted in falling-off of church attendance the first day of daylight saving time, he said.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Martha Cooper Becomes Bride at Springtime Church Ceremony

There are more and more weddings now that spring is here, and for weeks nuptial events will dominate the social world. And there'll be weddings of all sorts, home weddings, church weddings, out-of-door weddings and weddings at country estates.

First of all today I want to tell you about a wedding which took place last night. In the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, East End, at 7:30 o'clock, Martha Cooper, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roy C. Cooper, of North Negley avenue, became the bride of Robert M. Repp, Jr., son of the Robert M. Repps, of Atlantic avenue, at one of the most beautiful weddings of the spring season.

Concealing the organ were cibotium ferns and bamboo with pink rambler roses climbing over lattice screens placed beneath the balcony. A hedge of ferns, palms, hydrangeas and pink rambler roses marked off the pulpit, decorated with ferns and spring flowers.

Giving the bride in marriage was her father. A simple gown of white satin with a quaint yoke and cap sleeves of white tulle with a court train falling from the high waist-line was worn by the bride, who carried lilies of the valley, sweetheart roses and gardenias.

Pastel Gowns

The attendants wore similar gowns in pastel shades, fashioned with bodices of figured chiffon and long, even-lengths skirts of tulle. From the V-decolletage in the back hung streams of satin in the same shade as the gown.

Mrs. Edward H. Rynearson, of Rochester, Minn., sister of the bridegroom, as matron of honor, wore blue, and carried lilies of the valley, sweetheart roses and delphinium. The maid of honor, Sally Cooper, sister of the bride, wore orchid, and carried white lilacs and other spring flowers.

The bridesmaids carried Dresden bouquets of delphinium, sweet peas, Johanna Hill and Pernet roses.

Mrs. Leo E. Forman, of Sands Point, L. I., and Elaine F. Eastman, of Woodstock, Vt., wore jade green; Margaret S. McGaw, of Springfield, Mass., and Mrs. Edwin F. Scheetz, yellow, and Emma D. Epler, of Reading, and Virginia Rossell, pink.

Orchid chiffon was worn by the mother of the bride, who had a corsage of Johanna Hill roses, and beige lace by the mother of the bridegroom, who had a corsage of spring flowers in lavender tones.

Bridal Dinner

A dinner and reception in the home of the bride's father and mother followed the ceremony. Vases of roses were arranged in the drawing room, and the mantels in the living room were banked with hisbiscus, Pernet roses and maidenhair ferns, and in the dining room with foliage, snapdragon and delphinium. The long dining table was centered with a crystal shaft, surrounded with lilies of the valley and spring flowers, which held delphinium, lilies of the valley and roses. Pansies were scattered the length of the table, and bowls of spring flowers were placed at either end.

Following a wedding trip to the West Indies, the young Repps will be at home in Summerlea street.

Heinroth to Give Beethoven Program

Dr. Charles Heinroth will give an all Beethoven program in his free organ recital at 8:15 p. m. today. He opens the program with the Overture to "Coriolanus." This number was considered by Wagner to be an excellent musical self portrait of the composer himself. The program follows:

Overture to "Coriolanus" ..... Beethoven
Allegretto from Seventh Symphony ..... Beethoven
Marcia a la Turca ..... Beethoven
Allegro Con Brio, First Movement of "Eroica" Symphony ..... Beethoven
Adagio Cantabile from Sonata Pathetique ..... Beethoven
Allegretto Scherzando, from Eighth Symphony ..... Beethoven
Finale from Fifth Symphony ..... Beethoven
Allegro Maestoso. Allegro. Tempo Primo. Presto.

CHARLEROI WINS MUSIC TEST

CHARLEROI, Pa., April 26.—The Charleroi High School orchestra, before a crowd of 3,000 in the high school auditorium, won the Class A district competition here, and will appear in the state finals in Philadelphia on May 9. The Taylor Allderdice High School orchestra, of Pittsburgh, was given the second award and the orchestra representing McKeesport High School, third.

In Class B competition, the Coraopolis High School orchestra won first place and will make the trip to Philadelphia. California High School musicians were ranked second with North Union High, of Uniontown, third.

In Class A, with but two schools entering orchestras, Berlin High scored first with Carmichaels High School second. Other schools competing in Class A were Norwin and Connellsville High Schools.

The district competition for bands will be held at the Taylor Allderdice High School tonight. Schools entering musical units in this competition are: Charleroi, Langley, Homestead, Norwin, Aliquippa and Taylor Allderdice.

Census Offices Open Each Night

The Census Bureau offices in the American State Bank Building will be kept open until 9 o'clock every night until the census is completed, to enable persons not enumerated to comply with the census law, Supervisors James E. Routley, A. D. Levy and George L. Metzgar announced.

The census law provides that every person, who may have been overlooked or neglected by the census enumerator, must apply for enumeration under a penalty of fine and imprisonment.

DAVIS TO SPEAK AT STORE FETE

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, candidate for United States senator, is expected to speak here tomorrow night at a private unveiling of 10 mural paintings in Kaufmann's department store.

Other speakers will include Davis' colleague in President Hoover's cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, and Edgar Kaufmann.

Ralph C. Davis, chairman of the meetings and speakers' committee of Senator Joseph R. Grundy's campaign to succeed himself, has announced the appointment of the following members of that committee: John F. Tim, John P. Egan, C. M. Strobel, R. T. Houlden, Hiram Schock, Ira Hurwick, W. A. Blair, O. H. Friedman.

Speakers will be selected from the committee to broadcast Grundy speeches every night, excepting Sundays, from next Monday until the end of the campaign. Station KDKA will be used nightly and WJAS and WCAE on alternate nights, Davis declared.

Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, chairman of the Allegheny County League of Women Voters, has announced that all candidates for major offices, excepting Francis H. Bohlen, running for United States senator on the anti-dry ticket, have accepted invitations to speak at the League's dinner in McCreery's dining room at 6:30 p. m. next Friday.

County Commissioner Joseph O. Armstrong and Mayor Charles H. Kline are expected to represent the county and city respectively as honor guests at the speakers' table, Mrs. Smith stated.

Lincoln-Wm. Penn Detour Announced

A detour that will make west bound motorists travel many extra miles will be placed across the William Penn and Lincoln highways where they run together a few miles west of the city within the next few days. The detour, according to the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, will be in effect while the state highway department puts in the last link of new roads running from Pittsburgh west to the state line.

Motorists traveling the Steubenville Pike, are advised to follow the detour signs from the Beaver Grade road intersection to the Cliff Mineroad junction where the detour ends. The detour over the Beaver Grade and the Coraopolis-Cliff Mine roads is 11 miles long.

Daylight Time Here To Start at 2 A. M.

Pittsburgh, like many other cities in the United States, will officially adopt daylight saving time at 2 a. m. tomorrow morning. It will mark the thirteenth year that Pittsburgh has observed daylight time.

Schedules on all railroads, as well as in most business enterprises, will be advanced one hour, to remain so until the last Sunday in September. Ministers of virtually all local churches have announced their services tomorrow will be held on the new time.

New Buses Bought By Harmony Line

Purchase of two new 25-passenger buses for use between Pittsburgh, Butler and New Castle, was announced by the Harmony Short Line Motor Transportation Company. They will be placed in operation within 20 days, officials said.

Federation Hears Dry Law Talk

There can be no law without enforcement, no enforcement without penalties, no penalties without officials and no officials without public opinion, the Rev. Marna S. Poulson told the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs at the spring meeting yesterday in the Union Bethel Baptist Church, Carrick. Mr. Poulson, who has recently come to Pittsburgh from a charge in Atlantic City, declared law enforcement rests entirely with three county officials, the attorney, the sheriff and the judge and said given these three with backbone who are not tools of a political machine, any law on the statute books can be enforced.

He urged the women to visit the courts to acquire information and to lend the support of their presence to the judges. He gave as his opinion that, had the Nineteenth Amendment not been adopted, the Eighteenth Amendment would soon have been repealed. If Republicans and Democrats would forget to be partisans and begin to be citizens the question of enforcement would be settled within two years, he said.

An open forum followed Mr. Poulson's address and a group of songs by Mildred Douglas Reinheimer preceded it. At the morning session Mrs. Adolph Schmidt presided in her new office as county head; Mrs. J. R. Barclay read her district prize winning essay on "The Right Use of Leisure," and Mrs. Ronald Thompson, president of the Dormont New Century Club Juniors, spoke on "The Junior Movement from the Juniors' Standpoint."

The Mothers' Club of Carrick, the hostess organization, gave an informal tea in the attractively remodeled clubhouse at the close of the meeting.

Included in the other events on the week's program is the noonday Bible class on Friday at which Mrs. A. L. Chubb, director of religious education in East End Christian Church, will be the speaker.

The first "hike with a purpose" of this season will be held on Saturday, with Miss Marie B. Knauz as leader. A special study will be made of the birds, trees and plants observed, and a picnic supper will be arranged.

Of special interest is a new class which will open shortly on "Fundamental Drives of Personality," which will be given by Miss Essie Mae Davidson. This course will aim to help the individual understand herself so that she may find happiness.

For new swimming classes which open the week of May 5, registration may now be made. Two types of classes are presented: Those which meet twice a week for one month and those which meet once a week for two months. Beginning, intermediate and advanced classes are offered in day or evening sessions. Among the day classes is one at 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoons planned especially for home women.

In a talk that was provocative of thought, Dr. Ivan E. McDougle, associate professor of economics and sociology at Goucher College, addressed the College Club yesterday on "Population Pressure and World Peace." Presenting the peace problem from the sociological angle, he quoted figures and showed conditions in different countries that hinder international peace. China and India, with their over-population, low living conditions and high birth rate were discussed, and Japan was revealed as the point of greatest population pressure among the five great powers. Italy, too, is a disturbing element. There agriculture and industry cannot care for the population. Within the last few years a million Italians have emigrated to France. Only facts about these countries were presented, without conclusion, leaving the audience to infer that serious economic problems are to be settled before there can be world peace.

Hostesses for the informal tea which followed the program were Mrs. C. B. Watkins, Mrs. Welker Wallace Wentz, Mrs. Dean R. Wilson, Mrs. W. R. Work and Mrs. Walter A. Wellinger.

LOOPING BOWS ADD CHARM AND INTEREST TO MODE

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, APRIL 26.—LOOPING the loop is indulged in by so many frocks this year. The sash and bow are both so popular that designers are continually evolving new ideas to add charm and interest to that type of trimming. Frocks of soft material such as satin, frequently have, as their sole trimming, a wide sash loosely drawn across the skirt and large bow, both looped. The slightest suspicion of embonpoint, would, of course, entirely preclude this type of trimming, but on the right type of figure it looks quite good, and can be a sterling contributor to an interesting silhouette.

THE DINNER frock of black satin is in evidence just now, and is well suited to the stately lines of the current mode. These frocks are generally untrimmed save for some manipulation of the material, in the manner just discussed. Generally the long, even-all-around skirt prevails. Trains and uneven hemlines are certainly not conspicuous by their presence this season. To give you a good idea of the type of frock glimpsed at smart functions after dark, we send you a sketch of one of the newest frocks from the house of Paquin. It is of very heavy black satin, a very much liked material by this establishment this year. Over the simplest straight line foundations is draped a wide loop of the satin from hip to hip in front, ending in an imposing bow at the side back. To balance this striking silhouette, a deep and very full, shirred flounce is placed at the other side of the skirt, and this together with the skirt edge, is slashed up nearly to the knee at intervals all around—a clever variation of the even-all-around hemline.

THE SECOND sketch is of a lovely model from Lucien LeLong's Summer collection. It is an evening dress of primrose yellow crepe satin of which only the crepe side is employed. The intricate piecing on the upper part of the skirt is indicated in the drawing. Little double tabs at the back of the shoulder form an unusual note. An inset piece, coming from the front of the skirt, is drawn up in back and tied in a small bow. A series of overlapping, circular godets lend a graceful line to the long all-around skirt.

GIMBEL CHIEF OPTIMISTIC

A banner year for retail sales was predicted for 1930 by Pittsburgh business leaders in informal talks made at a dance and entertainment tendered employes of Gimbels in the William Penn Hotel last night by James Hammond, president of the store. Mr. Hammond said business for his company had increased more than 15 per cent during the first three months of this year.

Mr. Hammond also said Gimbels were employing 200 more employes than at this time last year. John S. Herron, president of City Council, also spoke, as did Wilmer M. Jacoby, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association.

Both addresses and entertainment were broadcast over Gimbel's station WCAE.

Woman to Address Retail School Feast

Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, consulting engineer, will be the principal speaker at a dinner to be held by the Research Bureau of Retail Training of the University of Pittsburgh at the Faculty Club Tuesday night. Tuesday afternoon she will speak, discussing motion study technique in department store work. At the dinner she will answer questions about her recent trip to Europe and the engineering conference in Tokio.

European Trip May Mean Douglas Fairbanks' Film Farewell

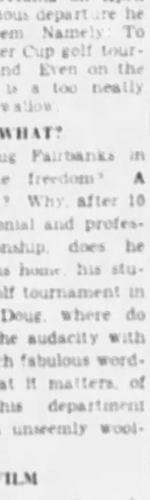
By DOROTHY HERZOG

HOLLYWOOD, April 26

There appears to be more to Doouglas Fairbanks' announcement that he is skidaddling to Europe with the professional golfers, Leo Diegel and George Von Elm, than meets the naked eye.

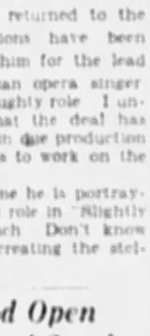
Ever since Mary Pickford and Doug returned from their semi-globe jaunt, the two have worked on separate stories. No more duo-stellar efforts ala "Taming of the Shrew." It was to have been each to his separate sinematic buggy and the buggy ride an individual box office bid.

But Doug, his intimates know, has been rather keen to swan-song from the kliegs. Doug has made a tidy little fortune. There are things to do and to see apart from the spasmodic harvest of celluloid fruits. With the wherewithal to gratify such wishes Doug has balked at leashes.



Douglas Fairbanks

Mary once stated to a group of New York newspaper scribes this years ago that she would never remain in pictures long enough to see the sands of glory drip into oblivion. Mary's bravery is great. She continues to make pictures.



Mary Pickford

Doug has more of the adventurous in his make-up. He has grown free of movie cocoon. There are those in the colony who swear Fairbanks has made his last picture. That his present departure from Hollywood and his sailing aboard the Mauretania on April 30 is not the obvious departure he would have it seem. Namely: To witness the Walker Cup golf tournament in England. Even on the face of it this is a too neatly baited hook to swallow.

DOUG THINKS WHAT?

What has Doug Fairbanks in mind? Complete freedom? A need to sample it? Why, after 10 years of matrimonial and professional companionship, does he leave his wife, his home, his studio? To see a golf tournament in England? Oh, Doug, where do you find the blithe audacity with which to fling such fabulous wordsmirks? Not that it matters, of course, but this department chuckles at such unseemly wool-pulling.

NEW MENJOU FILM

Which brings us strangely enough, to "Strictly Dishonorable." Being the title of a play and not paragraphical sharp-shooting at Doug. Universal purchased this New York hit. Since Adolphe Menjou returned to the colony, negotiations have been afoot to engage him for the lead role of the Italian opera singer. A charmingly naughty role. I understand now that the deal has been closed and in due production time Menjou goes to work on the U lot.

In the meantime he is portraying Clive Brook's role in "Slightly Scarlet" in French. Don't know offhand who is creating the stellar feminine role.

Kennywood Open Tonight and Sunday

Marty Schram's Orchestra will play for the second dance of the season in the redecorated Kennywood Park pavilion tonight. Lieut. T. J. Vastine's Westinghouse Band is scheduled for four concerts in the park Sunday. Recreational devices, old and new, will be in operation tomorrow. Among the new amusements will be the Auto Race, a juvenile "drive-yourself" speedway and "Laff-in-the-Dark," a funny ride over darkened tracks.

DIXIE DUGAN SHOWGIRL OF HOLLYWOOD IN STANLEY

By GEORGE SEIBEL

J. P. McEvoy's Dixie Dugan has got to Hollywood in the new screen romance presenting Alice White and Jack Mulhall. And yesterday Dixie got to the Stanley in a new fairy tale to tell what may happen to a cute simpleton in the Flicker City. It's called "Show Girl in Hollywood."

Whether any girl can be quite as silly as Dixie and get away with it is a question. But just as Prince Charming found the Sleeping Beauty and fitted the golden slipper to Cinderella's puppies, so Jack Mulhall will always bring Dixie through all her trials and troubles to fame and fortune.

Santa Claus isn't dead—he has moved to Hollywood.

YES, DIXIE IS CUTE!

There is no doubt about it. Dixie is cute. And she sings "I've Got My Eyes on You" very prettily, while she can't keep her eyes on anything long. The adventures of a show-girl dazzled by the Kleigs, make a very interesting screen romance, in which Blanche Sweet incidentally does some of the best acting, and an East Side Hindu or Kaffir injects one moment of rare comedy.

But the people who thought "Strange Interlude" was a menace to morals ought to see "Show Girl in Hollywood," where there's a guardian angel for every dumbbelle if she's dumb enough.

KAHN MADE KEYS DANCE

Art Kahn, as guest master of ceremonies, is revealed as a pianist of real gifts. And Bernie Armstrong made an even bigger hit with the "Maine Stein Song," which begins to sound like a national air.

Six Maxellos do marvelous somersaulting from airy seats on each other's soles, while Nelson and Knight present an entertaining sketch of music and comedy, and Dave Broudy's men play airs of spring.

RICHMAN, PESETZKI AND SOME PIES IN THE PENN

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

If you thought the talkies chased the custard pies from the movies, you're wrong. There are more pies being hurled about the Penn screen now than ever there were in the old Mack Sennett silent days. But don't get a false idea. The pies are part of an Our Gang comedy. They are not being thrown at Harry Richman, who is making his film debut in that theater in the feature presentation, "Puttin' on the Ritz."

Mr. Richman with his hair full of waves and oil, appears as a song-plugging entertainer, who makes good on Broadway and then "high hats" his old pals. Along with all this are the usual trimmings that go with such a movie story. There are songs, dances and a mixture of romance and liquor. A moral is stuck in too, making the picture a sort of preachment on what happens to a fellow when he gets a swelled head and a stomach full of bad booze.

WE LIKE THE HEROINE

Yet the picture is entertainment. It has an exceptionally well conceived musical sequence. "Alice in Wonderland." This is a real number. Its title sequence, "Puttin' on the Ritz," is clever also.

James Gleason, with his sparcely covered head and his mannerisms and wisecracks injects a lot of laughs. And feminine charm, beauty and acting ability is contributed by Joan Bennett in the heroine role. As for Mr. Richman, he does well enough and puts his songs over with a brave flare of conceit. But he isn't the type for movie heroics. The producers evidentially realized this, too, for they have kept him away from camera closeups.

THE NEW CONDUCTOR

Special interest is attached to the theater's overture presentation, because it marks the debut of David Pesetzki as conductor, replacing Elias Breeskin. This Mr. Pesetzki is alive, vibrant and picturesque. He makes you "feel" the music as well as hear it. He has everything under precise control—every musician, every instrument and every strand in that shock of hair that quivers like a wheat field on top of his head.

Special interest also is attached to the stage show, "Pearls," because of its headlined entertainers, Shaw and Lee. To see these lads in their queer brown derbies and tin-type suits is to laugh. To watch their antics and hear their chatter is to scream.

"CRAZY THAT WAY" IS JUST THAT IN THE ALDINE

By MILDRED FILLMORE

"Crazy That Way," a comedy romance, is the new talkie in the Aldine. And when you've seen it, you'll realize just how appropriate its title is. It is a one-reel story stretched into about six reels.

This story has to do with a baby-eyed coquette, who has all the boys goofy about her. Two fellows especially have tumbled for her in that big way. They follow her all over the place, drink toasts to her and fight about her. Ferns and palm trees are hurled about and furniture is upset, but it isn't even a good fight.

In the end, neither of the boys get her. A third fellow, a bridge-building engineer, steps into the limelight and the clinch.

Capable players are in the cast. But they can't do much with what they have to work with. So they strive bravely with what they have. Joan Bennett, pretty and alluring, is the heroine. Regis Toomey and Jason Robards are the boys who fight about her. And Kenneth MacKenna portrays the fellow who wins her.

Of course, the picture has some laughs. It may entertain you. But it is all a very silly display.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Affirmative

I, who once was a glamorous stranger,
Turned to a dull and awkward lad,
Nights that were teeming with dancing danger
Changed to nights that were pale and sad;
Phrases fair as an April morning
Lost their meaning and lost their lure,
We, who mocked at the gravest warning
Paused and faltered and felt unsure.

Thus we came to a sorry ending,
We who cherished each binding vow.
For our hearts may be slow in mending,
Skies seem cloudy and sullen now;
Yet when Spring starts the warm blood dancing,
Will you mock at her old-time thrill?
Or set out once again romancing—
As for me—why, of course, I will!

—Don Wahn.

Beautiful, but Numb

One of the prettiest cub reporters in New York, whose specialty was doing sob stories, got a job on another rag and lost it an hour later for making a boner. Her initial assignment was to cover a suicide. She learned that he killed himself because he had lost $10,000 in a week playing the races.

She began her tale with: "The racetrack, that merciless place where fools lose their money, prestige and self-respect, claimed another victim yesterday," etc., etc.

Add Swifties

Take it from Variety, a not generally known Bernard Shaw gag concerned Shaw, William Archer, the critic, and a panhandler. Shaw and Archer were ankling down a London street and were approached by a beggar.

"Press," said Shaw and walked on.

Broker Than Broke

The money problem appears to have struck the Eve'g Telegram's press room. A box of taffy was being raffled off and one of the staff urged a comrade nicknamed "Dutch" to take a chance.

"Go ahead, it's only a dime," he coaxed.

Newspaperman Stuff

One who admired the columns written by Don Marquis writes to inquire about him. "I miss his excellent sense of humor," says the writer. "Does anybody know why he quit delighting his millions of followers?"

Not exactly. Except that when he threw in the towel, Mr. Marquis said that he wanted to Get Away From It All because his column finally reminded him of a grave 23 inches deep.

Sour Grapes

But when I find I may endure
This ache for all its heavy cost
Of losing you, as I am sure
He'll have to lose what I have lost.

—F. R. G.

The Big Sentimentalist!

Fannie Brice enjoys the "heartbreak" verse that usually tops the column. She was saying that she frequently clips and saves them. "They are so human," said Fannie. "I always wanted to write one based on an idea concerning shawls, comparing the knots in shawls to love. You know, when you make a shawl you stop every now and then and tie a knot, and then I was thinking that even if the shawl was ruined, like a love affair, the knots always remain, just like there are so many things that remain even after love is gone. I know I haven't made myself clear, but somehow I like the idea of comparing the beautiful things in love to a shawl's knots."

Incidentally

Miss Brice and Bugs Baer were discussing the intelligence of their respective children, and Fannie said:

"Isn't it amazing how sophisticated most kiddies are today?"

"That's because of the movies and the radio," replied Baer. "If they had such inventions when we were kids, Fannie, both of us would have been hung when we were 14."

Joke

Gordon Kahn's pet quip is the silly about the dude rancher from New York who was looking over his new property in Wyoming and encountered an Indian and his squaw. The Indian was riding a horse and the squaw was waddling alongside burdened with bundles.

"Here, here," grumbled the New York gentleman, "why do you let that woman carry all those bundles?"

"Ugh!" grunted the Injun, "those her bundles!"

"Well," countered the buttinsky, "the least you should do is let her ride?"

Merciless Truth

The New York Village

It is true, as someone probably has already observed, that in New York you seldom know your next door neighbor, but New York is, as someone else probably said, only a village after all.

Grena Bennett, the first wife of Richard Bennett, the actor, is the New York American's deputy music critic. At the Metropolitan Opera House the other evening Grena found herself enjoying a chat with the woman in the adjacent seat—who wasn't one of the Stotesburys, Vanderbilts, Astors or Morgans, but Mrs. Richard Bennett 3d.

Little Wonder

Ed Wynn, the star of Ziegfeld's "Simple Simon," will never play a benefit performance again. He hasn't played one for several seasons, and this is why. The founder of a tubercular camp, who runs a benefit for it annually, begged Wynn to appear at the yearly show. "But it is on a Sunday," said Wynn, "and that is my only day with my family at our home in the country."

The promoter insisted. "It will be assured of success if you appear, and I don't know how we'll get along without you." The star finally gave in. "All right," he agreed, "I'll give up my only day of rest to help charity."

Back stage at the benefit Wynn encountered the promoter's son. "Where's your father?" asked Wynn.

"Oh," said the boy, "he won't be able to come this evening. He can't get away from one of those darned old pinochle games."

By JOHN P. COWAN

Like a new captain on a ship or a new officer of a lodge is a new master of ceremonies in a modern, continuous theater. Stars on stage or screen may cause a momentary furore, but a master of ceremonies who "sticks" seems, somehow, to supply the real thrill.

In the Enright yesterday the audiences welcomed a new baton-wielder in Paul Spor, who has been given a regal little as "Prince of Pep." He received a big hand each time he appeared and turned on the heat with the stage band.

At each performance he introduced himself with a speech about Pittsburgh and his admiration for the masters of ceremonies who have gone before. He wears an outfit like the summer uniform of a petty officer in the Navy and does his stuff with grace and spirit. Judging by the reception he received, Enright patrons are going to like him.

The big hit on the bill is the Vitaphone film comedy "Hold Everything," featuring Joe E. Brown and Winnie Lightner. It is faithfully done in color photography and is a remarkable example of almost perfect sound reproduction.

NEW PICTURE TODAY; OPERETTA, COMEDY OPEN MONDAY

The operetta "Babes in Toyland" opens Monday night in the Alvin. The comedians Barry Lupino and Rupert Darrell are featured. The cast also includes Betty Byron, Marcella Swanson, Edith Scott, Jayne Waterous, Ethel Wynee, Margaret Byers, Mona Moray, William Balfour, Frank Gallagher and Chester Herman.

Myron C. Fagan's comedy "Nancy's Private Affair" will be offered in the Pitt next week. Emmett Vogan and Edith King will head the cast.

NEW SHOW TODAY

"The Big Party," featuring Sue Carol, opens today on the Harris talk screen. "Phenomena," heralded as the "man with the radio mind," will be on the stage.

Winnie Lightner and Joe E. Brown are co-starred in "Hold Everything," which opened a second week in the Warner yesterday, coincident with its East End premiere in the Enright.

"Ladies of Leisure," with Barbara Stanwyck and Ralph Graves in the leading roles, goes into its second week in the Sheridan Square today.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's Question: Millicent Nolan, an American girl, plans to wear a $500 bouquet of orchids when she is presented at the British Court. Are such expenditures by wealthy persons justified on the ground that they keep money in circulation?

M. SOBEL, East End, store manager: A person should have the right to spend his money any way he sees fit. Five hundred dollars may be a bit expensive for flowers, but it keeps money in circulation at any rate. Miss Nolan no doubt believes she needs the orchids and is willing to pay for them. I can see nothing wrong.

M. Sobel

HARRY M'KIBBIN, East End, student: In the face of the present economic unrest, I think it wasteful and unnecessary to adorne one's self with a $500 bouquet of orchids. Miss Nolan may have plenty of money but there are other ways of spending it to a better advantage.

Harry McKibbin

WILLIAM C. NEFF, Etna, student: No, they are not justified even if such expenditures do keep money in circulation. Money will be kept in circulation by buying something useful and beneficial as well as spending it for something idiotic. A few flowers are all right. Five hundred dollars worth makes a vulgar display of wealth.

William C. Neff

MISS ROSE SHAPIRO, Herron Hill, bookkeeper: Surely the $500 which Miss Nolan is expected to spend for flowers will be put in circulation, but that doesn't justify the expenditure. The money would also be put in circulation if she paid less for orchids and gave the remaining to charity.

Rose Shapiro

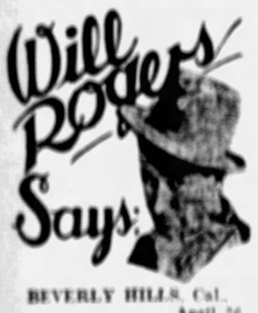
JESSE COCHRAN, East End, public stenographer: I am not in favor of spending such a sum of money on one bouquet of flowers. They may be beautiful while they last, but they don't last long. If Miss Nolan used the money for a poor child's education, more good would be done and the money would still keep circulating.

Jesse Cochran

IRENE O'NEIL, East End, assistant bookkeeper: Miss Nolan and the world would be far better off if she would spend the $500 for soup instead of flowers. The flowers are practically worthless, while the soup could be used to feed people too poor to buy themselves food. You could buy a lot of soup for $500.

Irene O'Neil

Will Rogers Says:



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 26.

Dr. Mayo and his accomplices held spring practice on the body of Knute Rockne, the Notre Dame coach. They extracted some of his poison and gave it to rabbits and waited to see their death. Instead, the rabbits went into a huddle, came out with an Easter egg. A little "Irish" cottontail named Gonsolovitch started heaving forward passes with this egg to a Belgian hare called (for gate receipts purposes only) Murphy.

Australian Jack rabbits run interference for him. Mayo then took a larger dose of this poison from Knute's leg and gave it to 11 little baby guinea pigs. They immediately defeated the rabbits 58 to 0. Then both teams wound up by going to mass to Father Duffy.

Yours,
WILL.

CHICKIE By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER LXX.

"This may interest you, ole dear," Janina watching Chickie clipping across the table. They were at lunch. It was the day after the steamer sailed and the item gave the guests in Ila Moore's party. Barry's name was not included.

Chickie read it twice, aware of Janina's shrewd scrutiny.

"Makes it nice that she can give her playmates such an outing, doesn't it? Fancy the eclat of saying to your steady: 'Hit the deck, old kid—off we go to the Riviera! Leave your wallet in your overalls. Dad has the sack! Gold touch like that makes a nice foil for one's charms, doesn't it?"

"Do you think men consider that, Janina? I mean does a man care about a girl's wealth or the house she lives in?"

"Ask yourself, baby! Is a rose growing in a mire as fair as one blooming among lilies? Women or diamonds — makes no difference — must have the right setting to bring out their fires and deepen their lures."

"A man wouldn't love a girl more for those things? You think he would be attracted by them?"

"He would—and deny it! Just a case of being tricked by his imagination. How is he to know where the girl herself begins and her setting ends? No way! So he endows her with the beauty of her clothes; the fragrance of her favorite perfume; the brilliance of her associates. Stars make the sky darker; sky makes the star brighter! Pity the light that must shine in a smudgy coal oil lamp! No chance—poor thing—"

Marjorie Married

Chickie laughed—"Not exactly fair in life, is it, Janina?"

"Life doesn't need to be fair. Too many pawns to play with." Janina's lips curled with contemptuous humor. "Speaking of even chances, did you hear about Marjorie Abbot? You didn't! Well, the child got herself engaged once too often and she had to make a marriage of it."

"Not to that limp, sallow Teddy Parks?"

"The same."

"Why did they let her?"

"Use your bean, my dear. Those who take love for fun sometimes find love taking them with consequence—with one of your great and holy purposes, as it were."

Chickie looked at her aghast. "She's only seventeen, Janina."

"It seems her age wasn't asked. Well, only half a hundred of the intimates of the family will ever know of it. In a year or two they'll dismiss it from their thoughts. Mrs. Theodore Parks will be listed among the bon ton wherever and whenever she wishes. But fancy if this happened to Peggy, the cobbler's daughter, or to Flossie, the belle of the factory! If love caught up with them in this nice, friendly way they'd have a fat chance of catching up with a husband, wouldn't they?"

Chickie said, blankly: "Isn't that awful—isn't that a shame? Now her whole life is spoiled."

Janina's Philosophy

"Spoiled? My dear simpleton, how do you figure that?"

Chickie trembled. "She didn't love him—it's awful."

Janina shrugged. "Well, this comes of putting dynamite into the hands of infants. No game for babies or amateurs. As I've said before, they can't get away with it, because it gets away with them. Too bad! Discredits the clever players."

Chickie turned impatiently, her heart sickened: "Clever players, Janina! Do you think all life is a joke and a make-believe? Why should any one fool with love?"

"I leave it to the pure and proud to ask. If I were to answer, you wouldn't understand. And as a wise man remarks, it doesn't do to tell the truth to those who do not wish to hear. . . . But I may say, in passing, that there are many who should not fool with freedom. It will make the fool of them."

"Who are your clever ones that get away with it, Janina?"

"Clever, indeed! They are the women, my dear, with a callous where you have a conscience. Conscience is the terror of consequence; the clever do not fear what they eliminate."

"It is hideous, though, to look at life in this way, Janina. In the ends what have you?"

"Hell's bells! If you're going to get morbid about it! If you're going to ask, 'Whither thou goest, woman?' How do we know? But we're on our way. Nice, new sea to travel. Lord knows, perhaps, if there be a shore ahead. I don't!

"So the pure and proud, as well as the young and stupid, had better keep to the old lands! Takes a crafty sailor and a hardy one to keep his boat afloat on these uncharted waters, let alone guiding it to port.

"When others strike out, as witness your young flapper, Marjorie—you see what happens. Boat smashes up. Lucky for her; money throws out a lifeline. You and I and Peggy, the cobbler's maid, in the same predicament, would sink sweetly and unlamented to the seaweed forty fathoms deep!"

Chickie Gay

Suddenly most and disturbed, Chickie laughed uneasily; and the next moment her cheeks were blazing, for Janina half read her thought. Janina said mockingly: "Where one stays on the old shore she may come to a little grief, but not to tragedy. And grief you know is but an emotion. It passes. Tragedy is a fact; it must be borne. What do you hear from the lad, my dear?"

"Only left two days ago, Janina, and he wasn't going on an airplane."

"Will you be stepping out with us a bit, now?"

"I may, and then, again, I may not!"

"You don't think that he is going south and play the hermit, do you? You don't expect it, if you have any sense. Well—in this day and age, if you want to be a match for a man, keep step with him. Or rather keep two steps ahead of him. Much better for the woman to keep him on the run than to give him the handicap on her. She'll never overtake him if she does. You mind me!"

"Janina, do you think I'm to be forsaken?" Chickie laughed, and for the first time, because of her great inward agitation, she appeared gay and untroubled.

"Well—no! You're not!"

Chickie repeated carelessly: "No—Janina, I'm not! And I shan't worry about keeping two steps ahead or two steps behind. Going is pleasant one way or another——"

Janina looked at her a long while in silence. She said: "I envy you, Chickie. I always have——"

Letter From Barry

They got up, then. It was well they did, for Chickie's eyes filled. She felt that in another moment she would seize Janina's hands; she would say in a nervous frenzy—"Don't! No—envy—You should know——"

And she was more excited that afternoon than she had been before—more distracted. She said to herself: "Forty fathoms deep—ho!" And then—"I don't know where he is. He'll wire. He'll surely tell me that——"

She looked over to Janina and wondered with a bleak, withering chill—"You envy me—proud and pure—oh, my yes! But I haven't the callus—that's all. I'm not like you, Janina. I can't look back and shrug—"

She decided to call up his office again; inquire if his address had come—

But one noontime she bumped into Tufts on the street. She was unnerved and said sharply: "Oh—Mr. Tufts!"

He laughed: "Why, yes, Miss Bryce. What do you hear from Barry?"

"Well — he's fine — enjoying himself."

"Too bad he cleared out like that—think he gave up a good chance here, though it was slow, of course."

"His mother was ill—"

"Yes — I know — he's gone South, hasn't he?"

"Why, yes—"

"Well—brilliant fellow—but too impulsive. Warn him against that, Miss Bryce—"

She laughed—"I will!"

So Tufts didn't know where he was to go—Tufts couldn't help her!

Five days after their last meeting a letter came. It was from him. At first she didn't realize its import. Gradually the completeness of its admission swung against her—like a heavy door slamming in her face.

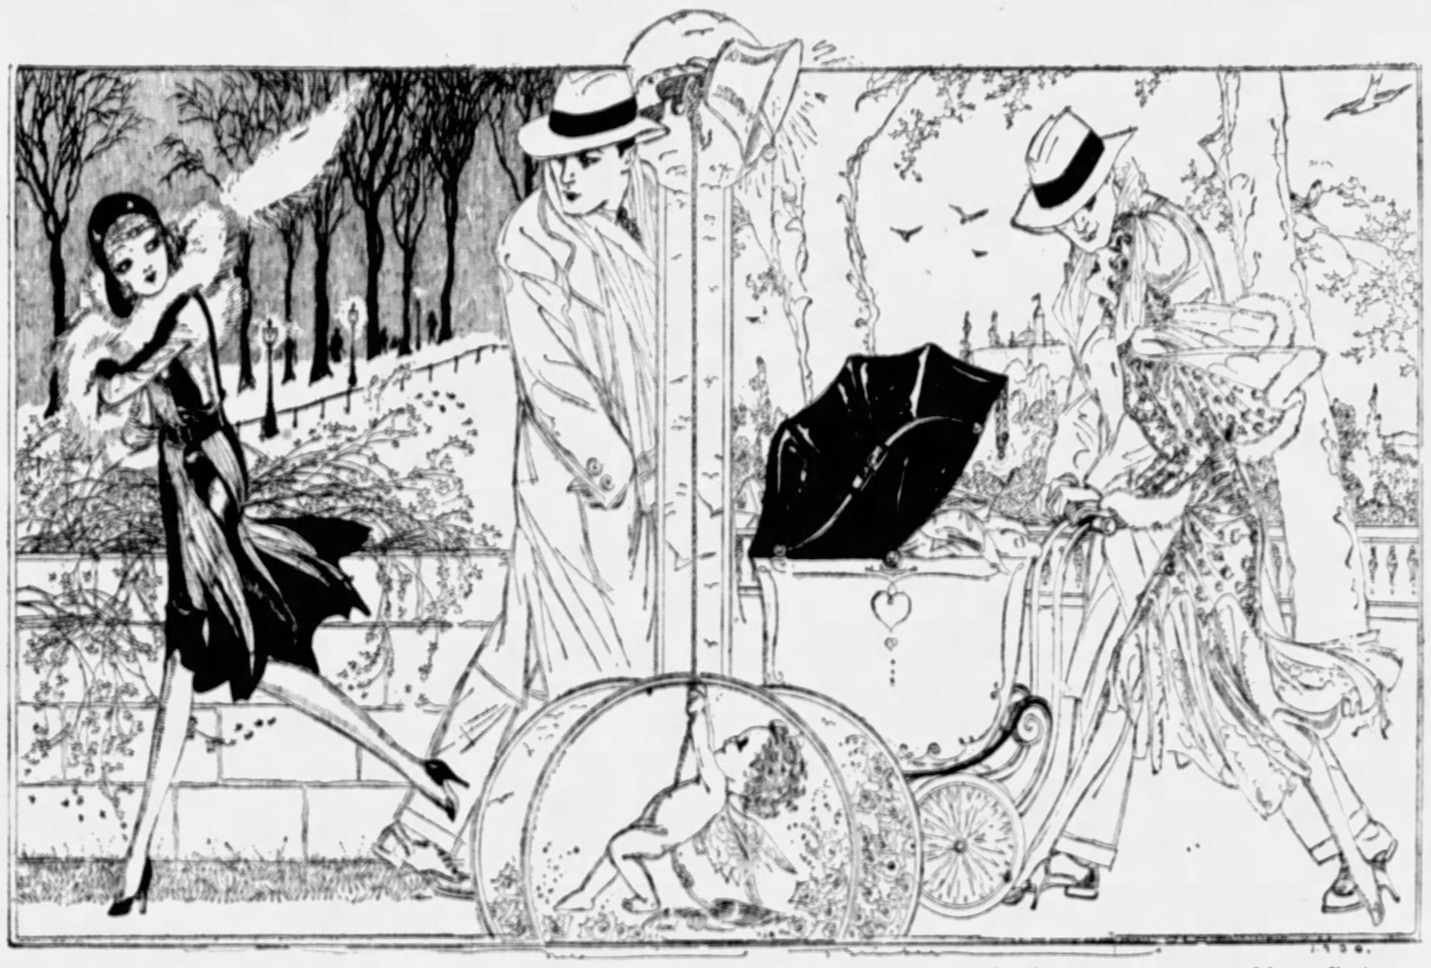
A WORLD'S WONDER

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY



ONE OF THE world's wonders — The Family — that world within a world; a home, a tiny universe, vastly important, very dear, earnestly fostered, that grows within almost the space of a short year out of nothing but the meeting of stranger eyes. Out of that other mystery—"the way of a man with a maid." Out of the invisible flame that strikes from the passing of two stranger-hearts.

Last year the old gentleman passed them every purple evening time. He saw their eyes meet and flicker with interest and turn away.

Somehow they met, with the spry approval and lively good offices of Daniel Cupid, Esq. Hastily he foraged the Spring-flower Shoppes, broadcast the banns, and leaned his strength upon the rope of the golden wedding-bell — dang-bong!—clang-ga-dang! —swinging it for all the world to hear the consummation of a romance after his own heart! "Strangers no more! Strangers no more!" he chanted.

And now the old gentleman passes them, both going the same way now, wrapped in a radiant rosy cloud pushing a glossy conveyance with a huge blue bow square in the middle of its quilted robe. Inside and under, stowed away like an Easter bunny in an Easter basket, precious and priceless and immaculate, is the mysterious beginning of that Wonder—a Home and Family.

The old gentleman marvels and ponders upon the instantaneous and lively flame of romantic Love, the mystery of family-love, and "the way of a man with a maid"—and the way of a maid in return!

"Yes, father, I believe I know what those men were after last night, but I cannot tell you about it until I receive permission from someone to tell you. You see, it does not concern me, personally, in the least—it is another's secret, altogether—confided to me. I must not break faith."

His eyes held mine steadily.

"I am sure of one thing," he said, "that if there were anything—questionable—about this secret—it would not have been confided to you—or if anyone had been so rash as to broach the subject you would not have listened. But—my dearest girl, empires have been shattered because of the foolish keeping of a secret apparently innocent. Are you sure?—no—I will not ask you to change your decision. But is it not possible to get in touch with this person and ask for your release from this promise?"

"I already have decided to do that," I answered. "But I must send a telegram asking permission to tell you—and only you—about it."

I hesitated, for I knew something of the rigid discipline of schools, and their insistence that pupils in classes should not be disturbed. But I also counted upon the good sense of Mrs. Barnes, the head mistress of Marion's school, if only she were in the office when the telegram arrived.

"I don't know," I returned. "I may get a reply within the hour, or it may be delayed for nearly half a day. But I will make the message imperative. It will not be a voluntary delay upon the part of—the recipient. You may be sure of that. But circumstances beyond her control may hold the answer back."

My father shrugged his shoulders with an Old World gesture, a remnant of his long sojourn in foreign countries.

"The knees of the gods," he said, then rose and held out his hand to me.

"Can you drop me at The Larches before you go to Southampton?" he queried. "I'd like to go over the house before anyone gets there."

"Not alone!" I protested quickly. I won't have you going into that house by yourself. You won't be very long, will you? I can stay there with you until you finish looking over things."

He patted my cheek indulgently.

"You're not quite an Amazon physically," he said, "although your spirit is valiant indeed. But I certainly shall not permit you to come in with me."

"Then I shall wait on the doorstep until you come out," I told him stubbornly. "I know I'm being foolish, but—but—I can't help it."

"Suppose we compromise," he said with a smile. "I will have Jim drive me over, and go into the house with me. Surely we both can trust Jim's loyalty and discretion, his strength—and if necessary—his quickness on the trigger."

"That is better," I told him with a mutinous smile. "Do you wish to go right away? I'll tell Jim on my way out and get the key to The Larches from Mrs. Tiger for you. Shall I leave it with Jim?"

"Please," my father said, kissing me. "How long before you return from Southampton—no speeding, mind." He shook a chiding forefinger at me.

I pretended to count on my fingers.

"Fifteen minutes to go fifteen minutes to return, five minutes to send the telegram. Thirty-five minutes."

"No!" my father exploded. "Make it an hour or at the least fifty minutes. I shall be displeased—seriously—if you take less time than that."

"Very well," I returned meekly, for it is the one subject upon which my father joins issue with me. Yet when he drives he is a speed demon. When I had left him and was hurrying downstairs to find Jim, I reflected with an indulgently cynical smile that masculine nature ran true to form along one line. Very few men give their feminine relatives or relatives or friends credit for any motoring skill or judgment.

"Where is Jim?" I asked Katie as I came ..to the kitchen and regretted the question the next instant as I saw Mrs. Tiger's foot tapping the floor as she sat stiffly upright in Katie's own comfortable low chair, and noticed Katie's ominously bright eyes. A domestic tempest was brewing, if I read the signs aright, and I thought I did.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

We Women

When you see a pair of trousers sauntering up the garden path these days you can never be sure whether it's your boy friend or just one of the girls.

From the confident way in which people continue writing advice to girls on how to "choose" a husband you'd fancy that love was an automat, where a woman could help herself, instead of a table d'hote affair with only a choice between two or three at the most.

A woman will forgive a man for forgetting most of his wedding vows—if he'll only remember the date of his wedding anniversary, and catch himself in time to send her her favorite flowers.

A summer romance seldom leads anywhere but at this time of the year almost any little sentimental detour may lead you straight to the divorce court—via the altar.

If you are a spring bride don't worry about the girls your husband has loved. The danger-ous woman in his life is not the one who once drove him to distraction, but the one who will some day come along when he is LOOKING for distraction.

A man usually breaks the Ten Commandments one by one as he goes through life, but once a woman STARTS breaking them she seldom stops for breath until she has smashed the whole lot.

The great mystery that no married woman has ever solved is why a man seems to get more kick out of gaping at a chorus of hand-painted, bony-kneed bathing beauties than out of looking at the one woman he thought worth having around for life.

A current husband may be a file to the nerves, and a pebble in the shoe, but somehow an EX-husband has all the glamour of memory and the enchantment of distance.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

'My Husband'

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Please tell me, through your valuable column, why some men, in speaking of their wives, never say "my wife," but say "Mrs. Smith." Which is proper and why? The same applies to husbands also. Is "my wife" or "my husband" a common phrase?

CONSTANT READER.

When a man speaks of his wife to a friend or to a person who either calls his wife by her first name or might, at some time, call her by her first name, he should refer to her as "my wife" or "Mary." And the same idea applies, too, when the wife speaks of her husband: She says, "my husband" or "John." The only time that the husband says "Mrs. Smith" or that the wife says "Mr. Smith" is when either is speaking to a tradesman, for instance, or to a servant.

Moist Foods

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When crisp fried bacon is served is it proper to eat it with the fingers in the manner that fried chicken is eaten? Don't you think that it is rather awkward to convey crisp bacon to the mouth with a fork?

A DAILY READER.

No—For both questions. Bacon, no matter how crisp, must be classed among the foods that make the fingers messy. And these foods, foods that soil the fingers, should, whenever possible, be eaten with the fork. As a matter of fact, there are very few foods that should, with propriety, be eaten in the fingers. Remember the good old rule—"If possible, use a fork!" (And, by the way, fried chicken should never be eaten in the fingers—except in private!)

Choosing Hosiery

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Which shade of hose do you think it is preferable to wear with a navy blue georgette dress, having long sleeves, for an informal party? "PETE."

There are many shades of hose that are appropriate and harmonious with navy blue, and the shade that you choose depends on the shade of your other accessories. If, for instance, you choose one of the lovely new shades of beige, have it of the same shade as your purse, hat, gloves and so forth.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Heat Prostration.

DR. COPELAND

When the first hot days come, with the thermometer soaring, you are treated to a free Turkish bath by the combination of humidity and heat. Perhaps you wonder if anything could be more uncomfortable. For many such a day may prove fatal. How it will affect you depends upon whether you are in proper physicial condition.

On such a sweltering summer's day you often hear the remark, "It isn't the heat, it is the humidity that's so awful." As a matter of fact, the discomfort is the effect of both heat and humidity, plus the high pulse rate caused by both of them.

What happens when a person is "sunstruck" or "heatstruck?"

The heat causes the temperature of the body to rise, as well as the temperature of the blood. If the heat is continued long enough the blood vessels become paralyzed. The blood accumulates in the dilated veins and lungs. The pumping action of the heart is lessened, not being enough to drive the blood all around the body.

The attack may begin with headache, faintness, weakness and dizziness. The pulse becomes quite rapid. Usually the skin is hot and dry. Delirium may follow.

Let there be no delay in treating the patient, for death may result unless speedy help is given. The temperature must be lowered and the heart stimulated.

First, loosen or remove the clothing and sprinkle or sponge the body with cold water. If possible the patient should be put into a bathtub of cold water, making sure that cold bandages are applied to the head.

After this keep the body cool and the extremities warm. If the feet are cold, and they usually are, then heat should be applied as soon as the cold bath is over.

Should the patient be conscious let him inhale either ammonia or camphor, or he may swallow water containing a few drops of aromatic spirits of ammonia or camphor. Make no effort to pour fluid down the throat of an unconscious person.

Rub the body and the feet and hands to keep the circulation going. When the patient is able to take it, give him a cup of hot, strong coffee or hot milk.

Scientists are endeavoring to find methods by which to combat heat prostration. Dr. W. J. McConnell, of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, recently made experiments to determine the affects of heat on human beings. These tests were carried out with persons confined in cork-lined heat chambers.

Dr. McConnell explains how the pulse rate acts as a barometer. By this means an expert can tell whether the heat sufferer is near the danger point. As heat and humidity increase the circulatory organs try to keep the temperature constant. The blood is pumped to the surface by the heart and the skin becomes flushed. As the struggle within the body increases, so does the pulse rate increase.

It was found that 90 degrees Fahrenheit, when the air is saturated and still, is the highest temperature to which the body can safely adapt itself. With a brisk wind blowing, 95 degrees is the highest safe temperature. The most suitable conditions for working are from 40 to 75 degrees. This data made it possible to predict how human beings react to certain temperatures. Means were suggested for combating the hot weather perils.

Horoscopes

Sunday, April 27

Sunday's horoscope holds prospects of encouragement and pleasant relations of a social, affectional and cultural nature, and also promotes the affairs of church and state. The mind may be introspective and studious, with a predisposition to quixotic or visionary twists.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which the private affairs may take precedence over over business activity, although there may be certain developments in real estate and investments. These should be handled carefully and new ventures cautiously considered.

A child born on this day may have a stable character, with studious mind and some ambitions, but it should be careful as to certain subtleties of its nature which may lean toward stratagem and expediency.

Monday, April 28

Monday's astrological chart holds excellent prospects for all manner of new projects, as well as fosters all hopes of promotion, preferment and favors from superiors or those in positions of power and authority. It is a time for pushing for such recognition and assistance. New contracts and agreements are under most encouraging and gratifying auguries.

Those whose birthday it is are under the most excellent planetary auspices for advancement, promotion and recognition from those in high places. They should push toward high goals in employment in new undertakings and wherever the prestige of those in power and authority may be needed, for their aid is assured.

A child born on this day should be talented, versatile and well equipped for a successful career in many diversified lines.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Hints to the gals who make the scales shudder with their weight: don't wear thick fur pieces which seem to shorten the neck; steer clear of heavy necklaces; select shoes as long as can be worn comfortably; remember that ripples and ruffles and cross lines detract from height; large artificial flowers worn on the bodice seem to make the shoulders high. A roll of fat on the back of the neck can be demolished by muscle strapping.

Keeping sweet is an important part of the beauty formula. Sour women, lacking human kindness or consideration for their fellow creatures, gradually develop the machine-gun face. The philosophical mind, realizing that most of the fighting that goes on in the world is all about nothing, develops a tranquil countenance. Mean thoughts make mean-looking faces. They upset the physical machine and are no good no how.

COMPANY USES SCIENTIFIC METHODS

Ready Mixed Concrete Company Adheres to Associations' Formula

Of the four raw products entering into concrete the two principal ones are water and concrete. While sand and gravel must be present in proper proportion the quality of the finished product, its workability and durability is governed primarily by the ratio of the water which goes into the mix with the cement present. All sand and gravel contain a certain percentage of moisture. The necessity of keeping the ratio of cement and water accurate is so important that the percentage of moisture present in the sand and gravel must be determined so that when additional water is added during the mixing the ratio must be exact. The Ready Mixed Concrete Company uses the Chapman flask to determine the percentage of moisture present in the sand and gravel which goes into the finished cement. This is an established method and by using it scientific accuracy is obtained.

Orders are received by the Ready Mixed Concrete Company through various channels for a certain amount of a certain specification. The company has eliminated the possibility of error or discrumination in the filling of these orders by an efficient system. The clerk in the plant gets the written order from the office. This order specifies the amount and formula of the mix. This weight and formula is then conveyed to the operatives in charge of the mixing. The necessary amount of each material is weighed and dumped into the mixer and after being mixed is conveyed to the waiting trucks.

SPECIAL FEATURE

A feature for the small user of concrete which the Ready Mixed Concrete Company has developed is the lack of muss and dirty residue left after a small job is poured. By delivering the finished product to the job in these modern trucks there are no unsightly vats or spots of concrete left to litter up the premises. The company maintains a department responsible to the management for the keeping clean and free from any nuisance the small job on which the Ready Mixed Concrete Company makes deliveries.

Formulas have been set up by the Cement Association where a certain predetermined strength is required, and the Ready Mixed Concrete Company follows these formulas to infinite exactness. It is sometimes necessary, however, to use formulas other than those generally accepted by the industry and this company also maintains expert engineers whose services are avaiable at all times.

GLASS SALES UP IN WEEK

Distribution trends in the several branches of the flat glass industry held without appreciable change during the past week, reports the American Glass Review. The increased consumption, reflecting more activity in the building industry, continues in evidence and the outlook is good for a gradual improvement in demand for window, plate and rolled glass products.

Factory operating schedules in the window glass industry have undergone some changes of late, several units having shut down for repairs while two have started operations within the week.

The marketing situation in the plate glass industry is reported slightly improved. Demand for this product is not yet seasonable, however, and is appreciably below the record volume being maintained at this period of a year ago. The increase in building, even though not pronounced, has strengthened the market to some extent. Resumption of normal trends in the plate glass field, however, must await greater activity on the part of the automobile industry. Operations at the factories are on a curtailed basis. Prices in this branch continue firm.

NEW YORK, April 26.—An electrical manufacturing combine with the Pilot Radio and Tube Company as the nucleus, which would result in a corporation with capital of about $10,000,000 and gross business of more than $20,000,000 is being discussed.

The first step will be the welding together of the Pilot Radio and the Noma Electric Company. The plan eventually will bring together half a dozen other manufacturers of electrical supplies. The manufacturing activities will be concentrated at Lawrence, Mass.

TRADE UPTURN INDICATED

NEW YORK, April 26.—Spring is far behind this year and with industrial activity continuing unseasonably cool the vernal pickup in business this season so far lacks snap and sunshine, says the Business Week in its report covering the week ending today.

What chill has remained over in the business atmosphere from last winter has been made a bit more uncomfortable by unseasonable weather. Industrial activity continues unseasonably cool. Steel fluctuates hesitantly between 75 per cent and 80 per cent from week to week without any definite tendency or prospects. The spring urge in building has weakened lately, except in heavy public and utility work. Coal output lags, and electric power production almost ignores progress by hugging last year's levels.

The current trade indicators so far do not suggest that the Easter rabbit left many eggs on the doorsteps of retail business. Commercial credit shows no seasonal expansion, commodity prices are weaker and currency circulation figures indicate that cash register bells are playing in the bass notes.

Theater Stars Aid Kaufman Center

An entertainment program will be given by the athletic department of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement at the auditorium, 1835 Center avenue, Sunday evening. Among the celebrities participating in the program will be Brian McDonald, McKeesport Harris Theater; Ralph Harrison's Orchestra; "Pittsburgh Sammy," composer and singer; Alan Slone, pianist, of Slone's School of Music; students of the Olympic School of Dancing; the Madison Twins, who feature a specialty song and dance act, and Master Andrew Bafento, accordionist. Harry Pittler will preside as master of ceremonies.

Maytag Co. Sales Compare Favorably

Maytag Company has completed extensive factory changes incident to the production of new models of its washing machines. Current sales compare favorable with a year ago.

Sales of products were virtually at a standstill in January and February, while plant at Newton, Ia., was being prepared for quantity production of the new models, R. H. Maytag, president, reported.

PLANES SERVED AT CHICAGO

An International Harvester Model A-5 three-ton speed truck of 190-inch wheelbase and equipped with 1,000-gallon tank recently was added to the motor truck fleet operated by the Norton Oil Company of Lemont, Ill. The truck is used to deliver gasoline to the Chicago Municipal Airport.

Features of this new International, which was announced this year, are a new six-cylinder engine with seven-bearing crankshaft, seven-bearing camshaft and removable cylinders; single-plate clutch with built-in vibration damper; new transmission with five speeds forward and reverse; new spiral bevel gear drive axle; latest type mechanical four-wheel brakes, and heavy pressed steel channel tapered frames. The truck is being made in four wheelbases; 156-inch for dump and semi-trailer service and 170, 190 and 210-inch for general hauling of all kinds.

RETAIL TRADE LESS ACTIVE

Retail trade is slightly less active this week than it was last week, colder weather slowing up the demand to some extent, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Jobbers of wearing apparel report business in moderate volume, with orders averaging rather small. Lumber and building materials are showing a gradual improvement in demand, although activity in those lines is averaging less than for several years. Dealers in wallpaper and paint report a more active demand for their products. There has been no particular change in the demand for groceries and provisions, with the movement still continuing somewhat below normal.

Sanitary and radiator equipment manufacturers reports business rather quiet, with operations at a lower rate than a year ago. Electrical equipment manufactures continue quite busy, with new business being received in very fair volume. Crude oil production was at a slightly higher rate last week, but demand for refined products show some increase.

Middle States Oil Shows 1929 Profit

The report of Middle States Oil Corporation—now Middle States Petroleum Corporation—and subsidiaries for the year ended December 31, 1929, shows consolidated operating profit of $1,109,131. Lone Star Gas Plans Further Expansion

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

LONE STAR GAS Corporation is to have a 30 per cent interest in the new gas line to be built from Stevens County, Texas, into Iowa. The company will secure funds for its share in the 400-mile 24-inch line by offering stockholders of record May 31 rights to buy one new share of common for every six shares held at $22.50 a share.

At the close of 1929 Lone Star had 3,595,841 shares outstanding so that about 599,307 shares of new stock will be issued which will yield $13,484,250 of new capital. A small increase in the amount of stock outstanding will also take place as a result of the acquisition of control of the Stamford and Western Gas Company, payment for which was made in stock.

At the closing price of 54 for Lone Star yesterday, the rights to buy the additional stock had a value of about 4⅝.

To Form New Company

A NEW COMPANY to be known as the Northern Gas Company will be formed to own and operate the gas line. A public offering of bonds probably will be made in the future but the common stock will be held by Lone Star, North American Light and Power and United Light and Power.

The line will be completed within about four months. The project was originally planned by the Moody-Seagraves interests.

Sufficient production of gas is available in Stevens County to provide for the initial operation of the line. It is planned to eventually extend the line south to the Amarillo field in Texas where a much greater supply of gas can be obtained. Ultimately the distributing end of the line probably will be extended as far as Sioux City, Iowa.

Distribution Already Owned

THE THREE ORGANIZATIONS which are building the line at present have distribution facilities at several points along the route which serve 65,000 consumers. These distributing systems will be retained by the companies which now own them but they will buy gas from the line at a city gate rate. Unaffiliated distributing systems will buy gas at a similar rate.

The Northern Gas Company, owner of the new line, will have representatives of all the controlling interests on its board. L. B. Denning, T. B. Gregory and F. W. Crawford will be Lone Star's members of the board. Mr. Denning, president of Lone Star, will also be vice president and a member of the executive committee. D. A. Hulcy of the Lone Star organization will be secretary of the new company.

Payment for New Stock

PAYMENT FOR THE new Lone Star stock may be made in full on or before July 3, in which case any dividends declared following this date will be paid on the additional stock. Payment may also be made with $11.25 a share on July 3, $5.63 on October 3 and $5.62 on January 3, in which case only dividends declared after the final payment will apply to the new stock.

Lone Star business has been growing at a rapid pace as a result of the recent expansion in territory served. Collections in April for business done in March were double those of a year ago.

L. B. Denning, president of Lone Star Gas, will be in Pittsburgh on Monday to complete arrangements for the organization's participation in the new pipe line company.

GENERAL TRADE SHOWS GAIN

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The volume of business for the week ended April 19, as indicated by check payments, was nearly 7 per cent higher than for the previous week, but about 8 per cent lower than the same week in 1929. Operations in steel plants during the latest reported week were the same as two weeks ago and a little higher than one week ago, but below last year. The value of building contracts rose more than 11 per cent over last week, but was less than for the corresponding period of last year.

The general index of wholesale prices was fractionally less than last week and 6 per cent below that for 1929. There was very little change in the composite iron and steel price from last week, but it was more than 6 per cent lower than last year.

Bank loans and discounts at the end of the week were about the same as a week ago. Prices for stocks remained about the same for both periods, while bond prices were slightly below last week and fractionally higher than in 1929. Interest rates remained unchanged from a week ago, but still about 50 per cent lower than a year ago.

Krupp in Agreement With English Firm

LONDON, April 26. — Thomas Firth Sons, one of the largest British steel manufacturers controlled by J. Brown & Co., concluded agreement with Krupps, eliminating competition in unfinished rustless steel products between Germany and British Empire.

Rules Doherty Plan Gambling Contract

NEW YORK, April 26.—Supreme Court Justice Strong ruled against Henry L. Doherty & Co., on an installment contract for purchase of Cities Service stock characterizing agreement as gambling contract.

SHEET STEEL SALES OFF

CLEVELAND, April 26. — Specifications for finished steel and releases for pig iron from the automotive trade have been keeping pace with the increase in automobile production, according to Daily Metal Trade. Sheet sales are not so active as they were during recent weeks, but there is no noticeable letdown in consumption. Merchant steel wire product prices gradually are becoming clarified with the market generally on a $2.20 basis for standard wire nails to jobbers.

Brisker demand for reinforcing steel bars is developing at Chicago. Cold-finished bar shipments are holding at the rate established a month ago, and heavier consumption by the automotive industry is resulting in a pickup in cold-finishing mill operations. Warehouse steel interests are not so busy, although a fair tonnage is moving in some distributing centers. Semi-finished steel shipments are fair.

Bituminous Coal Demand Improves

Demand for bituminous coal, although still comparatively light, is showing a slight improvement, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Prices continue very low. Western Pennsylvania grades of run of mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines as follows: Steam coal, $1.25@1.75; gas coal, $1.65@1.75; coking coal, $1.50@1.75; steam slack, 80@90c; gas slack, $1.00@1.10.

Mexican Eagle Oil Production Lower

LONDON, April 26.—Production of Mexican Eagle Oil Company for the week ended April 19 was 238,000 barrels compared with 272,000 barrels in the previous week and 253,000 two weeks ago.

STEEL INGOT OUTPUT GAINS

Auto Industry Credited With Biggest Decline In Demand for Metal

By B. E. V. LUTY.

Steel ingot production has been increasing continuously though quite slowly during the last four weeks, the present rate being probably a trifle above 80 per cent of capacity. According to precedent in normal or ordinary years, which excludes the last two years from the reckoning, steel production begins a downward swing by the end of March, to a low July.

Nevertheless the gain of the last four weeks may be regarded as due to seasonal influences, by way of intermediate and ultimate buyers being particularly conservative and postponing purchases.

In line with this view is the situation in the automobile industry, which has not only been increasing production to date but has made such steel purchases as to indicate a further increase next month, whereas the monthly statistics over a period of years indicate clearly that normally peak production would fall in the latter part of April.

LARGEST DROP

Estimating automobile production this month at 12½ per cent over March, the fourth month total would be 1,520,000 cars and trucks, United States and Canada, against 2,210,000 in the same period of last year, representing a 31 per cent decrease. Allowing for the fact that production has run more to light cars this year than last, the decrease in steel consumption is in excess of 35 per cent. This is by far the largest tonnage decrease in any line of steel consumption.

Steel production in the first three months of this year was 12 per cent under last year, while estimating April the decrease in four months is 13 to 14 per cent. The fact is that some lines have held their own, or even increased. Rail production has been approximately the same. Annual orders showed a slight increase, but more rails were rolled prior to January 1 this time than last. The agricultural implement industry has been running at a very high rate right along, quite possibly above its rate a year previous.

STRUCTURAL LINE

A particularly interesting showing is made by Department of Commerce reports of fabricated structural steel. The fabricating shops shipped 1½ per cent more tonnage in the first three months of this year than in the same period of last year, and any gain at all is noteworthy. The reports show that the shops have a large order book at the present time. Comparing bookings and shipments, the largest order book was on October 1, 1929, but in the next six months to April 1, shipments exceeded bookings by an amount equal to less than one week of work.

Last October it was commonly understood that the shops were filled for five months or more. This is the showing despite the fact that in the last three months bookings were 14 per cent under those of a year previous.

Another interesting showing is made by freight cars. It was not until April of last year that freight car production became even moderately heavy. Class I railroads installed only 9,159 cars in the first three months of last year, whereas since then installations have been about as many per month. Thus there was much more steel used in making freight cars in the first three months of this year than in the first three months of last. At the beginning of this month Class I roads had 37,117 cars on order, the largest number since July 1 last and only 15 per cent under the number May 1, the peak for several years.

Halpine Named Election Inspector

Paul A. Halpine, of 138 South Graham street, has been appointed majority inspector of elections for the Sixth district of the Eighth ward by Judge Harry H. Rowand, in Quarter Sessions Court, in place of Silas James, who has moved from the district. Regis Murphy was appointed majority inspector for the Twenty-third district of the Twelfth ward in place of John R. Daily, resigned.

HEINZ PUPILS GIVEN PINS

In recognition of their class work, Howard Heinz presented gold pins to 23 boys and girls of the Sarah Heinz House, East Ohio and Heinz streets, North Side, last night. The presentation was a feature of the annual exhibition of the institution.

The program included a dinner for recipients of the awards, a fashion show staged by girls who wore dresses of their own make, gymnastics and folk dances in costume.

ASKS CITY PAY HER $50,000

Alleging she was seriously injured by a speeding motorcycle policeman who ignored the ordinance against passing a standing street car, Ruth Nagel, of the North Side, asked $50,000 damages from the City of Pitsburgh and Anhony Rahe, motorcycle patrolman, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court.

She averred that as she was about to board a street car on Brighton road near Brightridge street, North Side, March 9, 1929, Rahe drove along at excessive speed without halting at the waiting car and struck her, causing a dislocation of her spine and other injuries.

Mine Faction Order Dissolved by Judge

PITTSBURG, Kas., April 26.—(AP.)—A temporary restraining order to prevent provisional officers of the United Mine Workers of America for District 14 from interfering with officers of the United Mine Workers organization, headed by Alexander Howat, was set aside by District Judge L. M. Resler. Judge Resley set May 6 for a hearing on the application of the Howat faction for a permanent injunction.

Europa to Install Catapult for Planes

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—The new speed queen of the seas, the North German Lloyd liner Europa, is to have a catapult erected on her deck to utilize the speediest of all means of travel—the airplane. The announcement was made by Richard Mock, engineer of the Ernst Heinkel Company, of Warnemunde, Germany, who will erect the catapult in time for the early summer trips of the Europa.

Estimates India's Wheat Yield Higher

ROME, April 26.—India's wheat production for 1930 is estimated at 10,023,300 metric tons in government figures received by the International Institute of Agriculture. That is 20 per cent larger than production for 1929.

The production of ginned cotton is estimated at 954,400 tons, which is 9 per cent lower than in 1929.

Lower Net Shown By Pittsburgh Steel Co.

Pittsburgh Steel Company reports for the nine months ended March 31, 1930, net profit of $1,342,141 after all charges, interest, depreciation and federal taxes, equal after dividend requirements on 105,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock to $3.12 a share earned on 253,500 shares of common stock. This compares with net profit of $3,076,932 or $9.96 a share in the nine months ended March 31, 1929. Net profit for the three months ended March 31, 1929, was $175,784 compared with net profit of $1,333,661 a year ago.

VALLEY MILLS AT HIGH PEAK

SHARON, Pa., April 26.—One of the best operating schedules in the past six months was carried out in Shenango Valley mills this week and everything points to continuance of the schedule next week.

Mercer Works, of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, operated at full capacity, 12 mills working 17 turns, for the first time since November. The Farrell Works remained on the same schedule it has used for more than a month.

Sharon Steel Hoop continued at about 87 per cent. Carnegie Steel Company remained unchanged except that the blooming mill was placed on a three-turn instead of two-turn schedule.

No change was made at the American Steel and Wire where a 75 per cent schedule has been in force.

Royal Dutch-Shell In Alberta Field

EDMONTON, April 26.—Report that Royal Dutch-Shell is planning to take an active interest in the development of Alberta oil fields, which has been persistently current for some months, has received semi-official confirmation. Statements made here by persons in close touch with affairs, are to the effect that this world wide organization is carrying on negotiations with the Dominion government to drill for oil this spring in the federal Buffalo Park at Wainwright.

Contractors to Meet Next Week

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Reflecting the recent official and general recognition of the construction industry as the key to American business stabilization, Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, Chief of the United States Army Corps of Engineers, will be one of the principal speakers at the spring executive board meeting of the Associated General Contractors of America, to be held here April 28, 29 and 30. Since his appointment by President Hoover, last fall, Gen. Brown has been in close contact with the country's construction activities, in which he has shown a marked interest and spirit of co-operation. He has kept in touch with many of the undertakings initiated by the Associated General Contractors, and has welcomed the co-operation of the best minds in the industry in the study to improve contracts and specifications.

VISIBLE SUGAR SUPPLY UP

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Estimating the 1929-30 world sugar crop at 29,833,000 short tons of raw sugar, compared with last season's record crop of 30,281,000 short tons, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, says "the world's visible supply of sugar is greater than in any previous year, and shows a continuation of the large supplies which have been increasing steadily since 1922-23, with the exception of a drop of about 1,000,000 short tons in 1926-27."

Decreased production from last season is reported chiefly in countries producing cane sugar, the world beet sugar production of 10,250,000 short tons being practically equal to that of 1928-29. The world cane sugar crop is estimated at 19,583,000 short tons, compared with 20,006,000 reported for 1928-29 and 18,468,000 short tons in 1927-28. Slight decreases from the 1928-29 season occur in all important sugar exporting countries in Europe with the exception of Germany, Poland, and Hungary.

DENIED FUNDS FILES SUIT

Her husband refused to give her any money out of his substantial income as a musician, Mrs. Collette Kendrick, 29, of Chelton avenue, testified at the hearing of her divorce action against Arthur G. Kendrick, 30, of Florida, before Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Common Pleas Court.

Kendrick's mother disapproved of silk stockings and bobbed hair when the couple visited her in Florida and wanted her son to remain with her, Mrs. Kendrick testified. Kendrick has a sour disposition and liked to wander, according to her testimony. They were married September 26, 1922, and in September, 1926, Kendrick said he did not want the responsibility of a wife and left her, telling her to go home to her mother, Mrs. Kendrick testified.

McKeesport Chosen By Optimist Clubs

SHARON, Pa., April 26.—McKeesport was selected as the meeting place for the 1931 convention of the nineteenth district of the Optimist clubs, and H. O. Anderson, of Syracuse, N. Y., was re-elected governor at the 1930 convention held here.

The Rev. John F. C. Green, of McKeesport, was elected lieutenant governor; William A. Bryer, of Sharon, was renamed secretary-treasurer, while Milton Schaffner and J. V. Ricart, of Erie, and the Rev. W. A. Thornton, of Sharon, were named on the board of trustees. Fred Dennis, of Buffalo, was named to the nomination committee at the international meeting in Erie in July.

COMPANY USES RIVERS

To reach the large markets developed for its products the Davison Coke and Iron Company on Neville Island makes extensive use of river transportation. The four barges shown in the picture contain 6,000 barrels of 24,000 bags of Green Bag cement. They are being moved by the Basic Barge Line, Inc.

This important industry selected its location for its shipping facilities that make easy access to a large market. It produces, in addition to Green Bag cement, pig iron, Neville Poco-Mixed coke and a number of other by-products that require the movement of a large tonnage of raw and finished materials.

This new industry's high-quality products have been received with so much favor that its most modern large-tonnage producing facilities have been operated to capacity and have added much to Pittsburgh's progress.

BLAMES IN-LAW, ASKS DIVORCE

The entrance of his mother-in-law into his home transformed his married life as day turns to night, Edward A. Damrau, of the William Penn Hotel, district sales manager for a national product, testified at the hearing of his divorce suit against Mrs. Elizabeth A. Damrau, of Macon street. Judge Samuel H. Gardner heard the case in Common Pleas Court.

His wife and mother-in-law, after she came to live with him, dismissed the maids and meals were uncertain, Damrau testified. Last June, after returning from a business trip to Kentucky, his wife declared during an argument, "I hate you so that I could kill you," Damrau stated. She insulted business friends and their wives he entertained, he testified. They were married in September, 1921, and he left their Macon street home last September. Indignities are alleged as the grounds.

CREDIT BUREAU HAS STEADY GROWTH

Recognition of Stellar Service Necessitates Larger Headquarters

The Creditors' Service Bureau, Inc., is operated under the personal supervision of B. H. Conaway, president, who has devoted the past 15 years to the collection and adjustment of delinquent accounts for manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers. J. P. Mann, manager, who has had 12 years' experience in handling mercantile collections, directs its efficient personnel.

While national in scope, even international, to the extent that it operates in Canada and South America, the organization makes a specialty of a personal adjuster service by automobile over regular routes out of Pittsburgh covering a radius of 250 miles. This opens up to clients a fast and effective service with a two-fold result, namely, it gives to the client quick returns in the way of cash, and through the adjuster's personal observations an up-to-the-minute report of the debtor's condition.

For that territory outside the tri-state district this organization offers the services of an efficient corps of bonded representatives everywhere.

The prime requisites to a successful collection service are: Prompt acknowledgment of accounts placed for collection coupled with application of aggressive but constructive collection methods and the prompt return of the proceeds to the client—all of which are realized by the clientele of the Creditors' Service Bureau, Inc.

The steady growth of this organization has made necessary a removal to larger quarters on May 1. After that date the address will be 1301-1312 Investment Building.

Brackenridge Asks Councilmen Ouster

The removal of Charles O. Wherry and J. W. Nolf as members of Council of Brackenridge Borough was asked in quo warranto proceedings filed in Common Pleas Court by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, through District Attorney Andrew T. Park. Wherry, owner of the Chrystal Pharmacy, was accused of selling chemicals to the borough for its water plant in the spring of 1929, for which he received $19.50, and Nolf, furniture store owner, was alleged to have sold 36 yards of matting to the borough for $39.60. The suit averred their interest in these concerns was in violation of the law. Judge James R. Macfarlane granted a writ of quo warranto, with a hearing fixed for May 25.

STOCK PRICES IRREGULAR AT START

A. M. Byers Opens at New High; Cash Register and Eastman Kodak Decline

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Stock prices displayed marked irregularity at the opening of today's market. International Harvester, American Smelting and A. M. Byers opened a point or so higher, the last named crossing 112 to a new high. American and Foreign Power dropped 2⅜ on the first sale. American International Corporation 1½ and Eastman Kodak 1⅛. National Cash Register sank to a new low level for the year.

Securities Concern Hit by Big Slump

The Pittsburgh Investment Securities Company report for year ended March 31, 1930, shows securities held at that date depreciated $797,467 caused "by the recent drastic reduction in security values." The report says that it is the opinion of the board of directors that all the securities held by the company have a sound value and as the markets reconstruct themselves these securities should enhance in market price.

Legge Knew He Was Making a Sacrifice, But—

—By B. C. FORBES—

ALEXANDER LEGGE was a great success as head of the International Harvester Company. He had been brought up in the business, had mastered it thoroughly and won the presidency by sheer merit. He recognized, when he accepted the chairmanship of the Federal Farm Board, that he was making sacrifices; but just how much of a sacrifice he could scarcely have foreseen. His is about the most thankless job in America today.

He wasn't steeped in politics nor steeped in speculation. Now he has to wrestle with both.

The government has become the champion speculator in grain, but it is a case of "heads you win, tails I lose." When individuals speculate they figure they have some hope of winning. When the Farm Board speculates it can hope to do nothing but lose. The more it tries to store up farm products, the more demoralized the markets apparently become. Overhanging surpluses always depress a market.

The only "relief" manifest thus far has consisted of relieving the public treasury of many, many millions of dollars. Instead of the grain and cotton people exhibiting ecstatic gratitude for the government's generosity, they have done little but growl. Politicians held out promises of prices entirely satisfactory to farmers; instead, prices have been deplorably low. In place of bread, they have received a stone.

The fault doesn't lie with Mr Legge. Even Moses couldn't have fulfilled the glittering promises made by the politicians. No nation has ever succeeded in pegging a world commodity at an artificial price—even our very powerful copper magnates, strongly banded together though they are, have just found the task impossible. Paying artificial prices surely is a novel way to discourage over-production of farm products and to encourage curtailment.

The law of economics cannot be repealed even by law makers as cocksure of themselves as some of those entirely ignorant of economics.

PAUL M. WARBURG, brought up on European banking methods, is out with several proposed amendments to the administration of our Federal Reserve System, particularly the composition and the method of nominating the Reserve Board. One suggestion would mean the giving up by senators of certain prerogatives. Swell chance! Another Warburg suggestion is that the secretary of the Treasury be dropped as a member. The truth is that Secretary Mellon is about the only member of the Federal Reserve Board known throughout the nation and enjoying extraordinary confidence. Theories, no matter how meritorious, have to fit politics, Mr. Warburg's dont.

WALL STREET WISEACRES have been having endless amusement originating amusement company mergers. But the rumor-mongers are not taken seriously.

THIS COLUMN some time ago predicted a revival in shipping. Eugene G. Grace, head of Bethlehem Steel, heavily interested in shipbuilding, told stockholders this week:

"The shipbuilding business is better at the present than at any other time since the war. There is a nice volume of shipping business pending."

WHILE TALKING with Walter E. Sachs, third-generation member of the investment banking house of Goldman, Sachs & Co., I suggested that it would be very interesting to figure out just how a customer would have fared who bought 100 shares—$10,000 worth—of each new issue of common stock offered by the firm. Mr. Sachs kindly agreed to put a statistician to work. The showing is extremely interesting.

An investment of $10,000 in each of the 53 issues sponsored would have totaled $530,000. The market value of these same securities (including stock dividends) on the day the compilation was made was $1,507,113.

The profit, therefore, was $977,113, or 184 per cent more than the original cost.

Meanwhile, cash dividends have amounted to $518,909.

The average annual yield works out at 12½ per cent, while the average annual increase of market value has been 23 per cent, a total of 35¼ per cent a year. Since the compilation was made, there has been a further substantial increase in quotations.

Is it altogether astonishing that investment trusts, wealthy individuals and many shrewd investors believe in putting funds into carefully selected common stocks? It's a great country!

The oil industry and the Natural Gas industry promise to become star performers. The water has been well squeezed out of oil stocks.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Nickel-Plating the World

"Bugs" Baer

We're good and hot. And it ain't because the gulf stream is getting closer to America.

And even though our squawks have the cruising radius of a parrot chained to a perch we want to protest against John D. chiseling his dime bonus down to a nickel.

All things must fade, all things must change, to something new, to something strange. But when a habit gets standardized we hate to see the brakeman throw the switch.

John D. has been giving away dimes in habit-forming quantities for 30 years, Amos and Andy.

He has dimed caddies, generals, porters, presidents, reading from left to starboard.

A dime ain't much of a lump in your coffee. But John almost succeeded in making those thin medallions popular.

He could hand out one of those silver wafers with the gesture of a king. He has been photographed diming the universe to a liberal frazzle.

He made the dimmiker famed in song, story and sub-titles.

But now he is pushing up nickels. It doesn't gee with President Hoover's prosperity bulletins.

We wouldn't be any more astonished if we saw the Statue of Liberty waving her torch at a total stranger.

It is more amazing than lamping a moth flying out of the horn of plenty.

We have never shaken the hand that shook so many dimes. And we refuse to until John gets off that financial diet.

It is fortunate for us that Carnegie gave away libraries before filling stations got popular. Mr. Rockefeller's example is going to have a bad effect on other millionaires.

We couldn't have been in a worse fix if Noah had joined the naval reduction conference.

If the U. S. mint has pulled a ligament we can understand the drought in dimes. Let us hope that John D. resumes his classical diming and that he fires the efficiency expert who shilled him into the nickel business.

GIRL UNAFRAID

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ardeth Carroll, who rooms in her Aunt Stella's boarding house, is being wooed by Neil Burke. While out motoring with Neil, Ardeth sees Ken Gleason. Ardeth has never been introduced to Gleason and the two just gaze at each other. Neil becomes jealous. Later Neil asks Ardeth to marry him, but she refuses. Ardeth goes to work for Jeanette Parker in a new specialty shop. There Jeanette introduces Ardeth to Gleason. The two new friends go on a Sunday outing together to a houseboat owned by Gleason. Ken explains that he is employed by Jeanette's father. They return to the city after a happy day. Ardeth hopes to see Ken soon, but she is disappointed. Ardeth is surprised when she meets Ken one evening after leaving the shop. They have dinner together. After driving Ardeth home Ken says he could not stay away from her. Ken brings Tom Corbett to the shop and introduces him to Ardeth.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI.

If Tom Corbett noticed Ardeth's agitation he gave no sign. His eyes had dropped to the trinket she was arranging on its satin cushion.

"What in the name of common sense is that?" he asked in astonishment, "A bunch of glass grapes?"

The girl drew a deep breath. Her tone took on protective lightness of manner. Golden eyes crinkling to smiles as she answered:

"You're an excellent guesser, since that's what it's supposed to look like! They're each a tiny bottle of perfume. See—unscrew one from the rest of the cluster and you have a little dash of perfume. It's an imported novelty Jeanette picked up yesterday."

"Gosh—the trouble you women go to!" Tom's honest square face looked blank.

She laughed—and he could never guess her mind was strained to the babble in the back room.

"A different perfume to match different moods!" she said gaily. "It goes according to colors. When one feels joyful—take this amber grape. That perfume's Mountain Holiday. And if you're pensive—this orchid one—Faint Regrets, and if you feel the world is your oyster, here's this red one, Whoopee! And when you have a headache—or a heart ache—or your rich uncle has just died and left you nothing, you'll find consolation in this tender green Never Mind."

"And you women keep that sort of truck on your minds along with your other troubles? Good Lord!"

"Oh, I don't think a woman with real troubles would remember she had this bunch of grapes!" Ardeth couldn't keep the bitterness out of her voice.

Something in the tone which raised the man's eyes to study that lovely averted face

Tom Admires Ardeth

A gale of laughter came from the other room. "Cyril, your priceless!" sounded Cecile's high clear voice. The inevitable Duvant "Not ree-ally!" echoed.

Tom's light brown eyes became a little grim.

"They're reading that Spy thing . . . you know, that scandalous weekly called The Spy?"

"I saw Jeanette bring it in this morning," she answered.

Tom's square fingers tapped a tatoo on the top of the case. "Well named, isn't it? How can a thing like that flourish for years in a civilized community? Nobody likes it, and everybody reads it. Afraid they'll miss some dirty crack about themselves if they don't, I guess. Says just enough to smirch reputations and not quite enough so they can get the rotten sheet for libel. Wonder who's the garbage collector who reports the tid-bits, anyway?"

"Like an assasin—striking in the dark, isn't it?" Hot color had run to Ardeth's cheeks. It was suddenly indicative of them, those perfumed, sophisticated women smoking and chatting scandal. And Ken—with his breezy out-of-door air, his frank smile—sitting beside Cecile.

Secret Meetings

The dream stretched through the days, yet now, beneath was a vague fear like a beating of wings. Only when she was with Ken did it still. There was a measure of anxiety in her manner now, something wistful in the hazel eyes when they silently searched the man's face. She had a breathless sense that the time was drawing short. The time for what . . . ?

Each day she saw him was another precious pearl added to the string. Noon hours when he would be loitering by the flowerstand at the corner. His tall, slim figure—white smile flashing in the warm tan of his face. Hurrying to her through the sunshine. Grasping her elbow with a teasing "Woman, I'm starved—for you!"

Why did they keep these meetings secret? Later Ardeth recognized this as the tribute she paid the fear—the fear which beat under her happiness like wings.

So long as nothing definite was said to break the spell, the dream went on. Nothing definite between them . . . nothing to struggle for — or against. Just the sweet security of knowing she would see him sometime during the day without pre-arranged appointment. She didn't want to think. If she did, she would be afraid.

Sometimes Ardeth found Jeanette watching her with that curious narrow smile. But Jeanette's manner was very kind.

The days, going by, bright and easy. One must skim the surface of them, lightly—oh, so lightly, lest one break through and drop into the fear below . . .

She lived only for his presence—for the moment when he would come in the shop, calling a careless greeting to Jeanette, his leaping across at her in laughing caress. Often Tom Corbett came with him, friendly as a great dog. His brown eyes watched Ardeth admiringly as he talked.

Ardeth Jealous

But at night the fear pounced on her. Dull nights when she moved as though in a dream about the Harrison flat. Washing her underthings. Mending her clothes. Busy with tasks for her real life in the shop the next day. Hot flames of jealousy burned her then.

Where was Ken tonight? What was he doing in that other world where she could not follow? Was he with Cecile? Jealousy scorching her as she thought of Ken's vivid face bent close to Cecile's provocating lips . . .

Bitter moods washed away, the next day when she saw him waiting up near the flower stand. Saw his white smile in the sunlight. Heard his murmured "Hungry—for you, Moth!"

Dancing with Ken out at the beach on Saturday nights. Seeing his eyes darken with emotion when they looked at her face so temptingly near . . . Ken, holding her so tightly she could feel his heart beating on her own . . .

Then, in a moment, this dream world shattered . . .

Surprising News

The postman pushing the weekly issue of The Spy through the letter slot.

A moment later she was standing by the door, her eyes running down a column called "Through the Spyglass."

The Spy has long watched with interest the engagement of a certain beauteous blonde and one of our former collegiate football stars. This engagement, like those of royalty, was made by family arrangement. But in our humble opinion long engagements are a mistake. There are other beauteous blondes—though not of royalty—and blue eyes will rove. To your knitting, Cecile!

Safety Pin Taken From Throat Of Baby

Nine-month-old Annabella Waters, niece of Chief of County Detective George W. Murren, was recovering today in Mercy Hospital after an operation in which an open safety pin was removed from her throat yesterday. The baby was rushed to the hospital nearly unconscious from loss of blood.

While her mother, Mrs. Ann Waters, of 1319 Locust street, was preparing her son, Edward, for school, Annabelle picked the pin from the tray of her high-chair and swallowed it. Mrs. Waters hurried the child to the hospital, a block away from her home.

CALIFORNIA OIL PRICE RAISE FORECAST

Trade Circles on Coast Look for Early Advance; Contingent on Schedule

SAN FRANCISCO, April 26.—Strong indications are given in oil circles that leading buyers are considering an early advance in California crude oil prices. The action is regarded as contingent on further reduction in the schedules of allowable oil production under the conservation program.

The proposal has recently been made that the state's production of crude be further curtailed to 550,000 barrels daily average, or 60,000 daily less than the present limitation. As on March 11, when Standard Oil Company of California last advanced crude oil prices in California, producers would be compensated for this reduction in their volume by an upward revision in quotations. The proposed curtailment, however, has not yet been approved.

GASOLINE RAISED

An additional reduction in output of California crude, coupled with curtailment of refinery operations, would be a direct aid in correcting the gasoline marketing situation on the Pacific Coast. As a result of the accumulation of huge supplies of the product over the past year and further additions early this year, retail prices have been in a weakened state. With keen competition, price-cutting has been freely resorted to.

Significant action has recently been taken by Standard Oil of California to bring about adjustment of the situation. It has raised its posted tank-wagon price of gasoline two cents a gallon.

"GAS" NOW "POSTED"

Stating that distress gasoline has been sold at times at prices actually below the cost of replacement, the company has gone into the wholesale market as a purchaser, posting a price of six and one-half cents a gallon for United States motor gasoline in cargo lots.

The latter step by Standard Oil of California is looked upon as a most important and constructive development. It is expected to exert a strong influence in curbing the shipments of large quantities of California gasoline to Atlantic ports at very low prices, which at times brought the basis down to four and a half cents a gallon at seaboard, Los Angeles.

HIGHLIGHTS IN BATTLE WHICH SAW LOCALS SCORE SIXTH VICTORY IN FIRST SEVEN GAMES

NEW FIRST BASEMAN PLEASES FANS

WHILE THE PIRATES were launching their home season yesterday with their fifth straight victory and their sixth win in seven games played to date, local fans were paying particular attention to the work of Gus Suhr, the new first baseman, upon whose showing as a regular will depend largely the Pirates' chances for getting anywhere this season. And in his first Forbes Field trial, Suhr must be said to have made a most favorable impression upon the jury.

Gus Suhr

Gus more than lived up to advance reports, and though it takes more than a few games to prove a new player in the big leagues, yesterday's crowd, when it left the park, was pretty close to being convinced that the first base hole has been filled in a manner that will leave little or nothing to be desired. Suhr played a game that had major league quality written all over it. He not only looked like the real hitter he had been reported to be, making two timely singles and knocking in three of the Bucs' six runs, but he was a very agreeable surprise as a fielder.

JUST WHERE THEY got that stuff about Suhr's being a doubtful quantity on the defensive is considerable of a puzzle in the light of his first home performance. He did all that could be asked or expected of a first sacker, handling himself in faultless style around the bag and taking care of everything that came his way in a smooth and sure-handed style that would have been a credit to any veteran at the position. And Manager Ens says he has missed only one ground ball since the spring practice games began.

Gus calmly accepted all of his chances on ground balls as well as the thrown variety, and one of the latter variety was a low peg that he dug out of the mud. Furthermore he showed in one fast play to second base that he knows what to do with the ball when he gets it. All around, his work gave the impression that he is going to fill the bill to a nicety. Not only is he a good hitter, as he was known to be when he was bought, but he looks in every way like a real first baseman. Earl Sheely's fielding will not be missed to the extent that was feared.

ANOTHER NEW PIRATE to make a most favorable impression upon the spectators in his initial full game on the local lot was Charley Engle, whose splendid showing while filling in for Pie Traynor at third base has been a factor in the Rovers' early successes.

Engle yesterday bore out the good reports of his work on the road, and both his hitting and fielding were of a standard to indicate that he is going to be mighty valuable as an infield reserve. It is hard to understand how, while the big league clubs were scouring the country and paying fancy prices for infield prospects, a player of Engle's seeming caliber was left down in Memphis waiting for the draft.

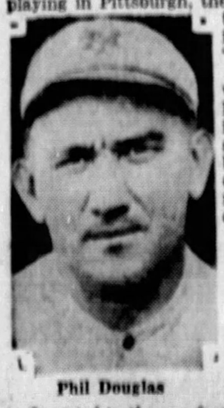
Charley Engle

THE PIRATES SET a new season's record for both major leagues by winning yesterday, as the victory made them the first club in the big show to win five games in a row. Up to yesterday the Bucs had been forced to share honors with the Giants in straight wins, but though the latter still hold first place in the National they are one game behind the Freebooters in number of contests won and have only four to their credit. The Browns and Senators also have won four games in succession. The McGrawites have been threatening to set some kind of record in another direction. That is, in the matter of consecutive postponements. Yesterday's cancellation—the thirtieth out of 88 scheduled games in the two leagues to date—following the calling off of an entire three-game series in Boston, made four idle days in succession for the Giants. They haven't played a game since Monday. Their fellow townsmen, the Yankees, were record holders up to yesterday when they hung up their first victory of the year, in the matter of straight defeats, but the Tigers have beaten their string of five consecutive reverses by losing their last six games.

RECENTLY IT WAS learned that Jimmy O'Connell, former Giant outfielder, expelled with Coach Cozy Dolan from organized ball by Commissioner Landis on October 1, 1924, as a result of Heine Sand's charges of attempted bribery, had been driving a truck for a livelihood during the winter months in his home city of San Francisco.

O'Connell spends his summers playing ball in the independent Copper League, down near the Texas border. Hal Chase, Chick Gandil and other exiles have performed in the same circuit, but in the main the teams are made up of youngsters who never have had a chance in the organized game. Art Shires, White Sox first baseman, played in that league before Washington tried him as a pitcher in 1925 and shipped him to Waco.

NOW COMES NEWS of another baseball outcast, Phil Douglas, former Giant spitball pitcher, who was banished from the organized ranks by Landis on August 16, 1922, while the New York club was playing in Pittsburgh, the charge being that he had written a letter to Leslie Mann, of the Cardinals, offering, for a consideration, to desert his team and "go fishing."



Phil Douglas

Ray Phelps, Jacksonville pitching recruit with the Dodgers, reports that Douglas is located in a small southern town, pitching independent ball and getting as many jobs as he can with various teams. The former big league spitballer owns a dray and a couple of mules, and is in the transfer business as a sideline, but having tough sledding on the whole.

"IT WAS DOUGLAS who taught me enough about pitching to get me into the big leagues," says Phelps. "I pitched several games against him as a semi-pro in Bridgeport, Ala., and when I told him of my ambitions he took me in charge and told me things about pitching of which I had never dreamed. He showed me how to hold the ball properly when I wanted to throw a fast one, how to stand on the rubber correctly,

BRAME TO PITCH TODAY

BERLINGER VICTOR IN DECATHLON

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—(AP.)—A record-breaking victory in the decathlon championship by big Barney Berlinger, of Pennsylvania, for the second year in succession, and a brace of smashing relay triumphs for the University of Chicago's sprint stars furnished the thrills for the opening half of the thirty-sixth annual Penn relay carnival yesterday.

Spread-eagling eight rivals with the greatest all-around performance of his career, the 21-year-old Berlinger rolled up a grand total of 7460.609 points to score a one-sided victory and surpass his 1929 carnival of 7298.978 points.

For nine of the 10 events in the all-day struggle Berlinger set a pace that threatened to topple the American decathlon record of 7784.68 points, set last year by Ken Doherty, of Detroit. The Quaker giant, however, finished a poor last in the final event, the 1,500 meter run, and tossed away his chances by collecting only 244 points when he needed over 500 to touch Doherty's mark.

SCORES FIVE WINS

Berlinger, however, captured five of the 10 events. Broke records in two of them with marks of 12 feet 6 inches in the pole vault and 46 feet in the shot, and wound up the day nearly 700 points ahead of his nearest rival, George Spalding, a Negro, from Morgan College, of Baltimore. The third individual record was broken in the discus by Dan Chubbuck, Connecticut Aggies, with 126 feet 11⅝ inches.

Berlinger, aside from his record-breaking events, won the high jump at 6 feet ½-inch, the javelin with 174 feet 8 inches, and the broad jump at 22 feet 6 inches. He tied for second in the 100-meters at 11.6 seconds and in the 110-meter high hurdles at 17 seconds, threw the discus 116 feet 11 inches, ran the 400-meter in 55.2 seconds for sixth place and was last in the 1,500-meter run in 6:02.

SPALDING SECOND

The western invasion in the relays was led by Chicago's fliers, with spectacular results. After tying on time with Ohio State's EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY—ALFRED LANGEVEN CAN BLOW AIR THROUGH HIS EYES—While I was in Detroit recently, Langeven performed this remarkable feat in my presence. The amount of air he can blow through his eyes easily can be detected by holding a hand in front of his face and he can blow out a small candle light without difficulty. His home is at 2338 Scotten street, Detroit. THE LITTLE JERBOA CAN JUMP 10 FEET—The Egyptian Jerboa, which belongs to the class of Dipodidae, is a rodent about a foot long. Its body is the size of an ordinary mouse, and its tail measures about seven inches. It easily can clear 10 feet in one leap and keep it up for a relatively long period.

107TH POLOISTS FACE CAVALRY

The dashing officers of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery tonight will seek to nail to the shield of their regiment its first polo triumph of the season as they ride against the regulars of the Three Hundred and Eighth Cavalry in the Hunt Armory, East End. So far, in four games, all the One Hundred and Seventh Officers have failed to record a win.

SUFFER THREE DEFEATS

The One Hundred and Seventh poloists have thrice fallen before the superior riding of the Shady Side Academy team. They dropped the first game by an 11 to 4 count. In the second, although they played far better polo, they were beaten by 5 to 2. Last week mounted in better fashion, they lost a 6 to 5 battle.

Lieut. U. S. (Steve) Madden, coach of the One Hundred and Seventh, has given his officers a week of strenuous drill. The team will line up as usual, for the start at least, with Lt. Kiser riding as No. 1, Lt. Ward as No. 2 and Capt. Stiemer as No. 3.

Teammates Pull Hard For Suhr and Engle

By THE BENCHWARMER.

Well, folks, it was still cold, but when you're winnin' you don't notice anything else. About a dozen of us just kept them army blankets wrapped around us and we had nothin' exposed but our faces so we could see and pop off. Everybody on the bench was pullin' for Gus Suhr and Charlie Engle to get away good and we sure did holler when they cracked out five hits and made a lot of snappy plays.

I think Jool is gettin's disgusted looking at lefthanded guys. Every time he passes me he makes some wise crack about daffy guys. Well, when you come to figure it up there does seem to be a lot of us around and every club that you meet has a lot of them.

ENS TELLS ONE

Ens was telling about a guy in the Texas League when he managed there that hated southpaw pitchers. He couldn't hit them with a snow-shovel. About that time the first casualty lists of the war came out and every night this bird would look over the list and then turn away in disgust. One

VAN RYN WINS NET TITLE

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 26.—(AP.)—The singles championship of the annual Mason and Dixon tennis tournament went to John Van Ryn, of Orange, N. J., at the expense of Van Ryn's Davis Cup doubles partner, Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex.

Van Ryn, former tennis captain at Princeton University, upset Allison by scores of 4-6, 7-5, 12-10, 6-1. The women's singles title went to Marjorie Morrill, of Dedham, Mass., who defeated Virginia Hilleary, 7-5, 6-1.

The home opener now a matter of pleasant history, our fascinating Pirates will proceed to take on those Cardinals again. The second and last game of the series will be staged in the Oakland orchard this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Two youthful Buccos won homes in Pittsburgh yesterday as the Ensmen took the measure of the Redbirds, 6-1. The boys referred to are Gus Suhr, slugging firstsacker, and little Charlie Engle, who has been a nugget to Skipper Ens in the absence of Pie Traynor.

Suhr and Engle gave 4,000 fans a lot to yell about as they belted the ball about Forbes Field while at the same time fielding like stars. And speaking of winning honors, it also is pleasant to relate that a veteran named Ira Flagstead endeared himself to Pittsburghers by his sterling play, including a blazing homer that carried over the garden wall of left-field.

SUHR HITS TWICE

Suhr had to cut a swath through southpaw pitching to make a name for himself in the inaugural. The San Francisco star connected for two scorching singles that tallied three of the Pirate runs. His fielding was a feature of the game, his one-handed pickup of George Fisher's drive down the first-base line being the best pl., of the contest.

Engle blasted Sherdel for two doubles and a single, and also contributed some fine defense work. Between the two of them, they made what is supposed to be a handicapped ball club look like

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The weather is showing a little improvement so I have put away my earlaps till next time I go to the talkies. You can always tell that spring is here when you see the Robins nesting in the second division of the National League. There is certainly a flock of postponed games to play off and the Red Sox are the only ones glad of it. The way the Red Sox figure a double-header is that they've got everything to gain and only two to lose. Say, if Hornsby's sore heel is going to keep him out of work he can still take up tap dancing.

RUTH HITS HOMER; YANKS GAIN FIRST WIN

CUBS, ROBINS VICTORS; NATS DOWN A'S

By COPELAND C. BURG,
International News Service.

NEW YORK, April 26.—Cross your heart and hope to die—they did it. The Yankees at last won a ball game, defeating the Red Sox, 3 to 2, and today those miserable ciphers in the percentage column have gone the way of all flesh.

It took 10 innings to do it. Babe Ruth's first homer of the season and doubles by Tony Lazzeri and Ben Chapman, the last two hitting in the tenth, were the winning factors for the long suppressed men of Shawkey Johnston pitched a sweet game for New York, striking out 10, while Monsieur Gaston, of Boston was nobody's Alphonse, fanning six and allowing only seven hits.

NATS DOWN MACKS

A whacking home run by Goose Goslin in the eighth won for Washington over Philadelphia's world champions, 6 to 4, and the Senators today were leading the American League. That blast was the third in four trips to the pan for the Goose.

Walter Stewart, Browns' southpaw, had far too much for the White Sox, and St. Louis won, 4 to 2. The Sox were powerless except in the eighth, when Harris, a pinch hitter, poled a homer, scoring Clancy ahead of him. Harris, formerly of the Portland Coast League Club, was making his big circuit debut.

Jamieson's single, a double by Fonseca and Hodapp's infield roller triumphed in the tenth for Cleveland over Detroit. The score was 5 to 4.

In the National League the Pittsburgh Pirates celebrated their first home game in a win over St. Louis, 6 to 1. Chick Hafey, of the Cards, and Ira Flagstead, of the Pirates, got homers.

CUBS NOSE OUT REDS

Charley Grimm's single brought the Cubs a 6-to-5 victory in 12 innings over Cincinnati after it looked like the Reds were a cinch. They were tied up four and four in the ninth. The Reds scored in the twelfth, but the fighting Cubs would not quit. Cuyler opened the last canto with a triple, scoring on Wilson's single. Then Heathcote singled, Wilson going to second and scoring on Grimm's hit.

The Brooklyn Robins finally won another game as Vance dazzled the Braves. The score was 5 to 1, and Boston's lone tally was unearned, Vance allowing only three hits.

The Giants, still leading the league with four games won and none lost, could not play on account of cold weather, and will engage the Phillies today in the first of a long list of doubleheaders.

Louisville Cancels Carnera,Wright Bout

LOUISVILLE, April 26.—(AP.)—A match between Primo Carnera and Bearcat Wright, Negro, of Omaha, Neb., scheduled for May 16, eve of the Kentucky Derby, was cancelled late yesterday at a conference of the American Legion and the Kentucky State Athletic Board of Control, "because of the questionable bouts in which Carnera has been engaged."

Announcement was made that an effort would be made to sign up Mickey Walker, of New York, middleweight champion, for the feature bout, provided his suspension is lifted by the National Boxing Commission.

GENEVA STAGES SCHOOL MEET

With close to 400 schoolboy athletes entered, the second annual Geneva College interscholastic track and field meet, opening high school event of the season in the tri-state district, got under way in Geneva's stadium at Beaver Falls this morning.

Competition was afforded high school stars in three classes, with a special program of relay races scheduled as the feature of the meet. Over 50 high school squads from Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia were represented.

Carnegie Tech's varsity track and field team is in Cleveland for a dual meet with Western Reserve, the first college meet of the year for the Skibos. Individual performers and relay teams of Pitt and Geneva, along with scholastic teams from Shady Side Academy and Midland High School, sought action in the second day's activity at the Penn relays in Philadelphia.

West Virginia Wesleyan and Marshall clash in a dual affair at Buckhannon, W. Va., and the West Virginia Big Ten organization of high schools tie up in a meet at Clarksburg.

U. S. Zone Cup Lineup Announced

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 26.—(AP.)—Joseph Wear, chairman of the American Davis Cup Committee, yesterday announced that George Lott of Chicago, Johnny Doeg, of Santa Monica, Cal., John Van Ryn, of Orange, N. J., and Wilbur Allison, of Austin, Texas, would represent the United States in American Zone Davis Cup play this year.

SCHENLEY WINS IN FEATURE CONTEST

Pounding out 16 safe hits for a score of runs, Schenley High School continued very much in the running for a third consecutive City League baseball title yesterday by defeating Allegheny Vocational in a Section I game, 20 to 0.

The Bellefielders ran up this score in a five-inning game, which makes it doubly remarkable. Statton, hurling for Schenley, limited Vocational to two safe blows, both singles, and drove out five safe blows himself.

In a second Section I game, Ralston defeated Westinghouse 9 to 5, overcoming a four-run lead taken by the Silver Lakers in the first inning.

In Section II, Oliver and Carrick were returned victors, Oliver defeating South Hills, 7 to 5, and Carrick upsetting Langley, always a threat in the sectional and league competition, by a 3-to-2 score.

Other games resulted in an 8-to-1 win for McKees Rocks over Dormont; an 8-to-5 triumph for Liberty over Oliver; a 7-to-6 win for Oakdale over Imperial, and a 4-to-1 game for Ford City over the Indiana Celtics.

BUDDIES CHEER SUHR, ENGLE

"I've been readin' these for two weeks and I haven't seen where a lefthander was shot or gassed yet!"

I hear the Cards are gonna use Bill Hallahan against us today. I saw Bill pitch quite a lot around Texas and he's got something, but the way we are hittin' I don't think Grove could stop us.

Larry is still ridin' Comorosky about the weather on Wednesday. Them Native Sons will have something to crack smart about all year. Well, it's all in fun and the funny stuff is good for the club. I heard Chic Fraser tellin' one of the older players yesterday that in all the years he has been mixed in baseball Chic never saw a club that had such a good spirit as the Pirates. I suppose that ought to be a boost for Jule. The boss has a nice way of ridin' us, and he doesn't get sore when we pull a fast one on him.

Winning five in a row and six outa seven isn't bad. If somebody just gives them Giants a little kick we'll slide into first place. Well, first place now doesn't mean much they say, but Jule says to go out there and win every game we can now and they'll stand out big in August.

A few of us kids are just about broke but the old pay check will be along in a few days. If we can break even or better with them Cubs in the four games that start tomorrow we will be sittin' pretty to meet them Eastern clubs when they begin coming to Pittsburgh next week. So long. See you Monday.

BOBBY YOUNG EASY FOR GIZZY

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A few months ago, the boxing commission refused to permit the Moose Temple to put on a Battling Gizzy-Bobby Young fight because it feared Young might annihilate Gizzy on the strength of his punching display against Ken Hargraves in the first two rounds of their bout at Motor Square Garden, when Hargraves substituted on short notice for Gizzy, who was ill. Last night Gizzy was permitted to go to the "slaughter" with Young, and he's still laughing, for what he didn't do to the over-rated Young aside from failing to knock him out, isn't in the fistic category.

The fought 10 rounds and over the full route the rangy Gizzy punched the stocky, short-armed Young before and aft and drove him from the proverbial pillar to the ditto post, alternately boxing and slugging and hitting the erstwhile pride of Duquesne, who now hails from Detroit, at will. Except for a few wild rights that landed when Gizzy became careless in the late rounds, Young hardly scored. Gizzy early brought the blood from Bobby's nose and then had it trickling from the mouth and Bobby was a gory sight at the finish.

YOUNG'S PUNCH MISSING

Young looked like a clumsy novice as he missed and clinched and seldom fought inside. He had no chance to land his vaunted right hand punch until he was beaten to a frazzle and then he had no sting left in it. At times, Gizzy brought cheers from the capacity crowd by staging typical whirlwind and swinging rallies in which he swarmed all over his foe.

Gizzy weighed 134¾ pounds and Young 132½ at 3 p. m. Gizzy entered the ring with an ulcerated tooth, which was shot with novacaine in the dressing room to relieve the pain.

Jackie Murray, Negro welterweight, of the Hill, doing more fighting than has been his wont in a long time, handed out a first-class lacing to Cowboy DeLuca, of Lawrenceville, in the six-round semi-final, only to have the officials kick around the decision. It finally went the right way on Referee Red Robinson's vote, after Judge Frank Ferris had voted for DeLuca and Judge Al Grayber had ruled it a draw. DeLuca did little but run and hold until the final round, which he won when Murray, with all of the first five rounds to his credit by wide margins, coasted in. The crowd booed the closing rounds. Murray weighed 146½ pounds and DeLuca 142½.

HOLT STOPS PORTLAND

Billy Holt, Negro, of Canton, 139½, stole the show with his hard punching, which disposed of Frankie Portland, of Ambridge, 136½, via the technical knockout route, after 22 seconds of the second round in the second bout. Holt floored his opponent for a count of nine and then the bell saved him at six on another flooring in the first round. Portland went down again soon after the start of the second round and his seconds tossed in the towel at the count of seven.

Roger O'Brien, of Chicago, 139½, who was knocked out by Portland in the second round in the same ring last week, dished out a shellacking to Joe Potts, of Charleroi, 136, until the referee called a halt with one second to go in the fifth round. Aside from being clipped and floored with a hard right to the jaw late in the second round and being saved by the bell at the count of eight, O'Brien won all of the way. He was handicapped by a badly cut left eye from the third round on. The sight of blood from the wound caused a spectator on the stage to faint as the bout ended. He was attended by Dr. M. R. Goldman, the commission physician, and said he was gazing upon his first boxing show.

Red Robinson refereed all of the bouts and Al Grayber and Frank Ferris judged them. Joe Keally was the knockdown timer and Max Zeugschmidt handled the watch. Bill Schuster did the announcing.

M'KEESPORT SEASON ENDS

Promoter Jim McGirr, of McKeesport, announced last night that he closed his indoor boxing season with Thursday night's show. His plans for the outdoor season are indefinite. He has an offer to promote in a nearby city and may do so in preference to operating outdoors at home.

Promoter Francis Flynn announced this morning that he had signed Farmer Joe Cooper and Harry (Kid) Wallace, Red Mason's new welterweight, of Philadelphia, for the 10-round main bout of next week's show.

Pitt Netters Face Bethany Team Today

The University of Pittsburgh's varsity tennis team, which has gone undefeated for two seasons, opens the 1930 campaign by meeting Bethany College at Bethany, W. Va.

WISCONSIN WINS

CHICAGO, April 26.—(AP.)—Jack Summerfield, Wisconsin sophomore pitcher, yesterday held Chicago to six well scattered hits to give the Badgers a 4-to-0 victory in their Big Ten baseball opener. Will Urban, Chicago veteran, gave eight hits and his wildness figured in the scoring of all Wisconsin runs.

HAS NECK BROKEN

LEO MURPHY

Halfback of the University of Pittsburgh, who is in the St. Francis Hospital, suffering from a broken neck, received in a scrimmage during spring practice on Thursday. His home is in Youngstown.

STAR SUFFERS BROKEN NECK

By JESS CARVER.

Suffering from a broken neck, which induced practically total paralysis, Leo Murphy, Pitt halfback, is waging a stubborn fight for life in St. Francis Hospital, where he was rushed after being injured in a spring practice scrimmage late Thursday afternoon.

Murphy's mother and father, a brother, sister and his sweetheart are at his side, and his coach, Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, and Director of Athletics W. Don Harrison have returned from Philadelphia, where they were to view the annual Penn Relays. Coach Sutherland and Harrison left for Philadelphia Thursday night without being aware of the seriousness of Murphy's injury.

Word from the hospital this morning was to the effect that Murphy exhibited some signs of improvement, some slight sensation having returned to his lower limbs.

CONDITION GRAVE

Despite the indications of returning feeling, Murphy's condition is regarded as being very grave. Even in the event that he recovers, it is believed that his days as an athlete are over.

Murphy was injured on a plunge into the center of the Pitt line in a first and second team scrimmage Thursday. Jim Clark, the first string fullback, hurt his shoulder when he tried to get through the forward wall and Murphy, who usually plays a halfback, was sent in to take his place. On the first play, he was struck by a defensive player and collapsed.

He was attended on the field by Dr. H. A. R. Shanor, team physician, who ordered him rushed to the hospital. There it was found that the sixth and seventh cervical vertebrae had been fractured. The diagnosis disclosed that the first vertebrae might also be broken.

PROMISING STAR

Murphy is a native of Youngstown, O., where he played high school football and baseball. He prepped at Wyoming Seminary, and entered Pitt in the fall of 1928. Last season he was used at a halfback, giving such an excellent account of himself in the games he played that he won recognition as one of the most promising backs on the Pitt squad.

Two-Man Race Cars Get O. K. of A. A. A.

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—The contest board of the American Automobile Association announced after a meeting here yesterday that two-man racing cars would be permitted this season in board track contests supervised by the association. The change conforms with the new regulations governing the annual 500-mile classic at Indianapolis May 30, where mechanics will ride with the drivers for the first time in many years.

RECORDS FALL AT DRAKE

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 26.—(AP.)—Five meet records were smashed and another was equalled as 2,000 athletes from 157 universities, colleges and high schools in 17 states opened the Drake relay carnival today by prancing through the preliminaries.

Hughie Rhea, a 208 pound football giant from the University of Nebraska, cracked the record for the shot put with a heave of 48 feet 10 inches, beating the mark established by White of the Kansas State Teachers' College of Pittsburg, Kansas, two years ago. The undefeated Marquette University quartet won its fifth straight victory of the season in capturing the Medley University relay in record breaking time.

A crack quartet of runners from Morningside College, Sioux City, Iowa, accounted for two records in events for Iowa colleges exclusively. The Morningside runners hung up a new mark of 1:30.2 for the 880 yard event and 3:25.6 for the mile.

Michigan's sprint relay quartet broke the Drake record in the 880-yard event, running the distance in 1:26.6 and figures to repeat its victory in the finals today.

DEMPSEY, GIBBONS MEET

Long's Sport Comment

and how to make a windup that would improve my pitching. I did not know how necessary it was to have a change of pace—to pull the string on my fast one, as he termed it—until Phil pointed out its value to me. He taught me that delivery, harped on my control and how to improve it, warned me to keep practicing on it all the time, and instructed me on how to study batters, find out their weaknesses and to pitch accordingly. He talked to me for hours, and it was he who made it possible for me to get as far as I have advanced. I'll never forget his kindness nor the interest he showed in me."

JUDGING FROM WHAT has happened to date, George Fisher, the hitting sensation of the Cardinals, wouldn't have much of a clouting average to brag about if he had to bat against the Pittsburgh pitchers, or two of them at any rate, every afternoon. He went hitless against Pirate chucking again yesterday in four times up.

Fisher has been murdering Chicago pitching this spring, swatting the Cub moundsmen for 17 hits in 25 times at bat for the huge average of .680. Against Remy Kremer and Ervin Brame, however, he has been able to make just one hit in 11 trips to the plate, for a mark of only .091.

ANOTHER YOUNGSTER AIMS to follow in the Queensberry footsteps of his father. He is Al Delmont, Jr., son of the Italian battler of that name who was for a long time a prominent figure in the bantamweight and featherweight classes. The father is now manager of a string of boxers, but he decided to entrust the handling of his son to somebody else, so he turned the boy over to Jerry Sinis.

The senior Delmont, now nearing 45, never rose to the ranking of a champion, but he fought many of the topnotchers of his time. He was active in the ring from 1902 to 1913. One of his last fights in 1913 was with Patsy Brannigan, of this city. Among others whom he met were Johnny Kilbane, Digger Stanley, Eddie Gardner, Monte Attell,

JUBILEE RACE TODAY

CRACK FIELD NAMED FOR FEATURE

WHEELING, W. Va., April 26.—The Golden Jubilee Handicap, with a purse of $5,000, added money, will be run this afternoon at the historic Fair Grounds race course, Wheeling Island. A crack field of three-year-olds, including many Kentucky Derby eligibles, will face the barrier in this, the premier event of half-mile tracks this season.

The greatest field of thoroughbreds ever to parade to the post on any half-mile track in the United States will start in this event. Dark Entry, Hal Price Hadley's colt, arrived at the track yesterday, and filled the field of starters to 17, all of which will race the mile and one-sixteenth It is not expected that any of the thoroughbreds will be scratched before post time.

ROYAL SABLE FAVORITE

Royal Sable, the chestnut son of Roi Herode-Sable Lady, has been receiving consideration in this event, and will likely go to the post the ruling favorite to win. However, Woody Long, winner of the Preliminary Trial, and likewise winner of the Fourth Estate Handicap, may be heavily played. There is a possibility that not one of these thoroughbreds will rule a decided favorite, for turf critics here have pointed out that any one of the thoroughbreds entered has a chance to cop the race.

In addition to the purse of $5,000, added money, the Wheeling Chamber of Commerce has made plans to present a beautiful gold loving cup to the owner of the winning horse.

MAY SET RECORD

Today's race should see the lowering of the track record for this distance. The track, despite some bad weather of this week, is fast, and since the field will be the class of the thoroughbreds here at the track, it would not be surprising to see a new record hung up.

The races today will climax the fiftieth meeting of the Wheeling Driving Club, and will climax the 16-day spring race meeting of this association.

Radio fans throughout the entire tri-state sector will have an opportunity to listen in on this event, for station WWVA will carry the entire program of the afternoon. Harvey Sproule will do the announcing, and this veteran turf writer will give a complete description.

BRITONS CUT GERMAN LEAD

LONDON, April 26.—(AP.)—A burly Yorkshireman and a lean, dour Scot, joined forces yesterday to turn back the invading Germans in the doubles phase of the Davis Cup strife at the Queens Club, West Kensington, and gave Britain a fighting chance to win the series.

J. Collin Gregory and his Scottish partner, I. G. Collins, scored Britain's first victory in three starts, defeating Walter Dessart and Heinrich Kleinschroth by 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

The victory was sorely needed as, a few moments before, the German singles ace, Daniel Prenn, had beaten H. G. N. Lee, 6-4, 7-9, 6-3, 6-2. In a match carried over from Thursday.

Combined with the opening triumph of Dr. Heinz Landmann over the British star, Henry Austin, this gave the Germans a lead of two matches to one.

star quartet, anchored by the famous George Simpson, in the quarter-mile championship at 42.7 seconds, the Chicago team came back to capture the run-off in 42.2 seconds as Allen East, the Maroon anchor, withstood Simpson's sensational finishing bid.

REPEAT IN MEDLEY

Three of the same four Chicago runners topped off their day's work by outfooting the East's best, Georgetown and New York University, in the sprint medley. East, Haydon and Capt. Root ran in each event, supported by Rambay in the quarter-mile and by Letts in the sprint medley.

Pennsylvania, in the other major relay of the day, captured the distance medley honors for the second successive year. The Quakers came within one-fifth of a second of equaling the world's record for this event when the quartet composed of McLoughlin, Kerr, Montgomery and McKniff reeled off the distance of 2½ miles in 10 minutes, 20 2-10 seconds.

LERMOND BEATEN

The biggest upset came in the special three-quarter mile run in which Leo Lermond, the internationally famous Boston A. A. distance runner, finished a bad last in a field of three. The event was planned as a medium for a record attempt by Lermond, but the cold weather caused his legs to stiffen and he pulled up on the last lap after trailing George Bullwinkle of the College of the City of New York all the way. Bullwinkle's time of 3 minutes, 5 3-10 seconds compared favorable with the world's record of 3:02 3-5, set by Tom Conneff in 1895.

INDIANA LOSES

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., April 26.—(AP.)—The Indiana defense weakened in the eighth here yesterday after Veller had held Minnesota batsmen to four hits in seven innings, and the Gophers scored three runs to win their first Conference baseball game, 5 to 4.

BRAME READY FOR CARDS

BRAME TO PITCH

The second battle scheduled for this afternoon will bring together Ervin Brame and Bill Hallahan. The latter is a southpaw star, who is credited with having more stuff than any lefthander in the National League. Hallahan already defeated the Cubs twice and it is altogether likely tha: he will give Our Boys some perplexing moments.

Manager Ens in all probability will keep his present lineup intact for one more day. George Grantham's bad ankle is just about well, but he is likely to ride the bench again this afternoon. Ira Flagstead will continue in centerfield if a lefthander works.

HAFEY HITS HOMER

The only tally credited the Redbirds yesterday was the direct result of one of the longest home runs ever struck at Forbes Field. Chick Hafey, an outstanding clouter in the sport, drove a liner far out over the top of the fence in left-center in the second inning with the runways cleared. Flagstead's four-sacker was a line drive over the leftfield fence in the fourth with none aboard.

Kremer was able to shut the door in the face of Fisher, the new batting sensation, but he had to have a brilliant play by Suhr to keep George out of the base-hit column.

Sherdel left the game in the seventh for a pinch hitter, and Harold Haid, of New Castle, finished for the Cardinals. The Pirates will leave tonight for Chicago, where tomorrow they are slated to open a four-game series.

FEDOR BEATEN

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 26.—(AP.)—Nick Testo, of Troy, earned a 10-round decision over Mickey Fedor, of Toledo, O., here last night.

U. S. WOMEN DRAW BYES ABROAD

LONDON, April 26.—(AP.)—Eight women golfers from the United States entered in the British women's championship, opening at Formby, May 12, will enter the second round without the formality of playing first-round matches. In the drawing Miss Glenna Collett, Miss Rosalie Knapp, Mrs. Lee Mida, Mrs. Leo Federman, Miss Virginia Holzderber, Miss Grace Barclay, Miss Virginia Van Wie and Mrs. Stewart Hanley drew first-round byes.

The other Americans must fight their way into the second round, some of them, notably Miss Helen Hicks, drawing stern opposition. Miss Hicks' first opponent will be Miss Doris Chambers, former British champion. The American representation, 22, is the greatest on record.

The first-round pairings for players from the United States:

Mrs. E. A. Ross, New York, vs. Mrs. Johnstone, St. George's Hill.

Mrs. D. C. Hurd, Philadelphia, vs. Mrs. F. Cautley, Chanet.

Miss I. J. Morris, New York, vs. Miss K. Gapnham, Mazeing.

Miss Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., vs. Mrs. R. Wynne, Rotterdam.

Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, vs. Mrs. C. R. Taylor, Colwyn Bay.

Mrs. Stewart Hanley, Detroit, vs. Miss V. Branwell, Gloucester.

OUTBOARD BOAT RECORDS FALL

NEW YORK, April 26.—(INS.)—Three records were shattered today as outboard and inboard motorcraft dashed over the finish line in the third annual race down the Hudson from Albany.

J. E. Wilkinson, of Boston, driving his outboard "Flash," was the first to finish. His time was 3 hours, 25 minutes and 3 seconds.

Diegel Has 53 Clubs For British Invasion

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—It's lucky for Leo Diegel that the London naval parley did not limit golf clubs. He has only 53 assembled so far for his invasion of Great Britain and more are to come. He is somewhat worried whether a consignment of putters will arrive in time for his boat Wednesday to add to his 14 woods, 31 irons and eight putters. Pity poor caddie? Well, hardly, avers Leo; his caddies often get more out of a tourney than he does.

Fight Results

At Moose Temple—Battling Gizzy defeated Bobby Young, 10 rounds; Jackie Murray won referee's decision over Cowboy DeLuca, 6 rounds; Billy Holt won by technical knockout over Frankie Portland, 2 rounds; Roger O'Brien won by technical knockout over Joe Potts, 5 rounds.

At Erie—Philly Griffin defeated Maxie Sirub, 10 rounds; Tug Phillips defeated Johnny Sacco, 10 rounds; Frank Bolofsai defeated Joe Donata, 6 rounds; Matty Oldach defeated Eddie Litz, 4 rounds; Steve Ketsel and Carl Scalzo drew, 4 rounds.

The "boubrette plays" of the long ago were always written around a beautiful young woman, usually a girl who lived in the slums and dressed in rags, with a ready answer and a witty repartee for everyone. She had either a bundle of newspapers for sale or a bootblack kit to pick up a needy penny or give a laughable reply or a scathing rebuke to a villain—such a character we meet in the play of "Captain in Petticoats." Our heroine, "Tessie," has been cared for by a charitable old Irish woman, who is holding Tessie in power until she is redeemed by the man who left her years ago.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

WALTER WINCHELL, famous New York columnist, will be heard on KDKA at 9 o'clock tonight during the Amen Corner dinner in the William Penn Hotel. Winchell's column appears daily in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Walter J. Kelly, "The Virginia Judge;" Joe Cunningham, humorist; William S. Hard, journalist, and Dr. Carl Wallace Petty, will complete the broadcast bill at 10 o'clock.

Clara Bow will entertain Mary Brian, Gary Cooper, Ruth Chatterton, Buddy Rogers and a score of other famous film stars in the Paramount Hour, WJAS at 10.

The Penn Relays at 4 and a special "Song of the Flame" presentation for Del Monte at 8:30 will be WCAE attractions.

KDKA's special broadcast to Admiral Byrd at 11:15 will include a description of the Apple Blossom Festival in Byrd's home town of Winchester, Va.

Twenty one-pound fruit and nut eggs and 123 greeting cards were received by Cousin Lora over the holidays.

DX SERVICE

A real scout is C. W. Horn, chief engineer of the NBC, formerly with the Westinghouse stations. When Horn went to South America he took a short wave set with him to pick up reports of his mothers' condition while she was ill here. On certain nights at the close of the KDKA program, a special message was broadcast to Horn by short waves. Through a telephone he spoke with the nurse at his mother's bedside, and sometimes with his mother.

(a) Hail, Bright Abode—from "Tannhauser" ..... Wagner

The Pittsburgh Male Chorus, assisted by the Tuesday Musical Club Choral, gave its closing concert in Carnegie Music Hall last night. The program included many old favorites of the clubs which have already appeared on their programs, the most important number being Harvey Gaul's cantata, a "Thracian Holiday," very beautiful choral writing.

J. Fred Lissfelt

This cantata showed the ladies' choir a its best. They sang it a few weeks ago in their own hall, but the excellent acoustics of Carnegie Hall enhanced the lovely nuances of their voices and the music, so that the results were most gratifying. Eeln Glen-Campbell sang the soprano solo with accuracy and a sure feeling for its chromatics, and C. Warren Kinder did the tenor solo.

Another good soprano voice was heard when Mrs. Dora Bryan Moorehead joined the male chorus in Herbert's popular "Italian Street Song." A group of songs by Pittsburgh composers showed Marianne Genet in one of her best melodic moods. Harvey Gaul as an impressionist, and Adolph Foerster as keeper of the old forms. The Negro spiritual brought out the best of the male chorus, and they responded with the joyous "Swing Along" as encore. Mrs. Moorehead's encore was the Bach-Gounod "Ave Maria" with choral background.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

STANDARD SEEN IN NEW FIELD

NEW YORK, April 26.—(AP.)—Rumors in Wall street are to the effect that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey is preparing to take an important place in a new field, the industrial chemical industry.

In doing so it may become one of the chief competitors of the Du Pont interests of Delaware and of vast German chemical industries.

The report was partly confirmed by Edgar M. Clark, director of the company in charge of chemical production, who said that the company is spending $300,000 or more in erecting a laboratory to augment its already large chemical facilities at Bayway, N. J.

Scientists employed by the company are reported working on many new chemical products which the company hopes have a great future in the industrial field.

3,500 ATTEND EXHIBITION

The attendance at the annual "Pharmacy Night" exhibitions at Duquesne University when "open house" was held last night, was estimated at more than 3,500, Dr. Hugh C. Muldoon, dean of the School of Pharmacy, stated. The student pharmacists demonstrated their work in all departments for the spectators.

3 in Stolen Auto Caught in Wheeling

Arrested in an automobile which, police said, was stolen from East Liberty last Wednesday night, three Lawrenceville boys were being held by Wheeling police pending arrival of local authorities. Pittsburgh police, informed of the boys' arrest, announced they would bring them back. Because of their youth, the Sun-Telegraph is withholding their names.

No. 138.
AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and directing an increase of the indebtedness of the City of Pittsburgh in the sum of Two Million One Hundred Thousand ($2,100,000.00) Dollars, and providing for the issue and sale of bonds of said City in said amount to provide funds for the following purposes, namely: For the City's share of the damages and expense incidental to widening, extending, straightening, regrading and improving new streets, and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon.
Whereas, corporate authorities of the City of Pittsburgh, by ordinance duly enacted by the Council thereof and approved by the Mayor thereof on March 7, 1928, and duly recorded and published as required by law, enabled Chief Engineer of the Department of Public Works to prepare, or cause to be prepared, plans and estimates of the cost of the widening, extending, straightening, regrading and improving of Bigelow Boulevard, from Fifth avenue to Forbes street, and the acquisition of the property and rights of property necessary therefor; and that the bond and debt created thereby are within every and each other limit prescribed by the Constitution and Laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.
Now, Therefore, be it enacted and ordained by the City of Pittsburgh, as follows:
SECTION 1. That the Mayor and the City Controller are authorized to have prepared, and to execute and deliver to the purchaser of the bonds hereinafter mentioned, one or more temporary typewritten or printed bonds for the aggregate principal amount of the bonds authorized by this Ordinance which temporary bonds shall be in such denominations and amounts as the Mayor and Controller may determine, and shall be substantially of the tenor of the registered bonds to be issued hereunder, with such appropriate omissions, insertions and variations as may be required. Each of said temporary bonds shall have on its face the words "Temporary Street Bond, 1930, Series B." Such temporary bonds shall be exchangeable at the office of the City Controller for a like principal amount of amounts of permanent bonds, when such permanent bonds are ready for delivery. Upon every such exchange the temporary bonds surrendered shall forthwith be cancelled by the City Controller. Until so exchanged the temporary bonds shall be in full force and effect according to their terms, and shall bear interest from the date thereof.
SECTION 2. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.
Passed in Council, April 14, 1930.
Approved, April 22, 1930.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Singing in the Bath

"She looks downright saintly," old Mrs. Tucker said to her daughter in a whisper as she watched Jean Nichols in the church choir, her eyes uplifted, as she was singing the solo part of a hymn.

Many others in the village of Radford admired Jean, and a number of men were of the opinion that Jean wasn't too saintly to make an adorable wife.

When Jean's aunt finally passed on and the old farm was sold and turned into dollars in the bank in Jean's name, she went to board with the Widow Tucker.

Jean's male acquaintances in town thought her more adorable than ever now that she had some money in the bank. Jean had four proposals the first month after she came to the village when the farm was sold. Jean made four men feel that she was sincerely pained not to be able to say "Yes" to their most honorable propositions.

On Easter morning, in her new dress, as she stood back of the choir rail amid the lilies and let her sweet voice send forth a beautiful Easter hymn, a great many in the country church congregation thought the same thing — that she seemed to be more of a saint than a flesh-and-blood native girl.

"If ever," old Deacon Handley said, "I saw a girl who was thinkin' of her heavenly home to come, it's this girl."

Fortunately mind reading was a phase and not an actuality at that time because Jean Nichols' thoughts were far from saintly.

If ever, she was thinking, she could get out of dull, stupid Radford and into the big city, she's do things with her voice—she'd make heaps of money, because the few thousand in the bank wouldn't last forever. She would become famous and get her picture in the papers and she would go on the stage.

Lands Job at Last

What a jolt that would have been to the pious Fadfordites who listened to her glorious voice singing the sacred hymns, if they could have known that she was automatically doing the singing and at the same time thinking of a stage career!

Jean did some tall figuring after this. She went to the city ostensibly to do some shopping, but she looked around for opportunities. Jean wasn't foolish enough to think that she could step into any producer's office, open her mouth, sing a few bars of "Lead, Kindly Light" and promptly be made to sign a fat contract. She knew that it would be tough sledding, as they said in Radford at "mud-time."

What could she do? Being a New England girl she wasn't the kind to plunge in and do nothing and spend her few thousand while waiting to make good. She read the papers and finally landed a job with a concern as demonstrator of a food product.

Jean thought she got the nice little job because she had assured the manager that she knew all about housekeeping and cooking, but she didn't; she got it because she was so attractive people would pause to watch her, especially the men, and that was good business for this food product.

Radfordities shook their heads when Jean went to the city, especially the men who yearned to marry her. Many said that it was terrible for her to go to the big city in the midst of so many temptations and pitfalls.

Jean found neat but cheap quarters at Mrs. Unger's old brown-stone place, where the meals were sufficient and the rooms agreeable, although each floor had a sort of community bath room at the end of the hall.

Jean worked faithfully, saved a little each week, studied all of the theatrical publications and knew that she could sing as well as a lot of the performers she heard. She also knew that the difficult part was in landing a chance to make good.

Then she met Oliver Massey.

She met him at the door of the community bathroom, and she met him forcibly, for he yanked open the door and ran smack into her, dropping his shaving kit and yelling, "Hey, why don't you look—"

Met Informally

By that time he had looked.

"I beg your pardon—so sorry, light was bad—hope I didn't hurt you," Oliver muttered.

"It's all right, I'm not hurt," Jean answered, turning red and clutching her kimono about her.

"The big tow-head," she muttered to herself. "I wonder where he came from. He probably took the vacant rear room."

She was introduced to him next night at dinner.

"We met informally," Oliver said to Mrs. Unger.

Jean was going to give him a cold look when he said that, but his engaging smile spoiled that plan.

Oliver Massey looked good to Jean. She decided that he wasn't a tow-head, but that he had beautiful, wavy, tawny hair. She wondered what he did. She found out soon after this—he worked for a big scene painter.

Before the week was up Jean went to two shows with Oliver. He was a great "find," because he seemed to get passes to an awful lot of shows and he was really a nice kid, nothing wrong about him so far as Jean could see.

One holiday forenoon Jean went to the Orthalia, one of the really big theaters, to see Oliver at work. He had invited her. There had been a rush order, and it being done on the stage and Jean wanted to get the thrill of stepping on a real theater stage, even if it was only in an empty theater.

Oliver was on a towering step-ladder slapping great gobs of green against a bright yellow background, and then he made funny brown poles up to the green splotches, while Mr Bendoit his boss, stood away back in the middle of the dim theater and shouted directions.

"But what is it supposed to be?" Jean asked. She was disappointed, it looked so hideous.

Go down in the theater, Jean, and take a look," he said as he made a red half-disc against a great splotch of greenish blue.

Jean went back and took a look.

Oliver Praised

Mr Bendoit heard her.

"The kid is pretty good, Miss," he said.

"It looked so terrible up there."

"That's the trick, knowing how to make it look right from back here. Plenty of artists can do stuff on a two-by two canvas, but they couldn't do this. I took that kid in and trained him."

It came about after she had been singing in the bathtub. Jean almost always did that. She took her bath every night before dinner. It rested her and the bathroom wasn't in such demand as in the morning. Oliver didn't have to try the bathroom door to know it was occupied. He heard her singing.

"I hope I don't disturb anybody. I just can't help singing in the bathtub."

"Disturb? Gee it's swell, you ought to do something with that voice besides tell people about the merits of Chokobula or whatever that stuff is you demonstrate."

He started to describe it. Jean impulsively asked him to try and get her a chance to let this Mr. Denton hear her voice.

"Saw Denton. He likes what we're painting. Told him about you, Jean. He says for you to go and see Joe Anderson—he's Denton's director."

She went to see this Joe Anderson. Joe was frightfully busy and the casting was about finished and he had just taken on Viola Varden, whose real name was Mary Schwartz, and who was Joe's girl friend. But since Mr. Denton ordered him to give the girl a hearing, he did so.

Jean went home with tear-blurred eyes. This Joe Anderson had seemed impatient and rude and had told that she wouldn't do at all.

Jean came to her door when Oliver rapped and told him the sad news.

"Th' big bum; but don't worry, Jean, I'll get you landed somehow," he promised.

Big Star Has Her Say

Mr. Denton was busy with his production. He had forgotten all about the girl Oliver had asked him to give a hearing. He was all worked up over a new scene being put into the show. It called for a special background and Bendoit was sick and he had to have it done right away, as the big star had to have her say about it.

He had other troubles. That Viola girl Anderson had taken on had a voice like a new brakeband. Anderson was putting him off, and now Bendoit was sick. Bendoit told him that Massey could do the stunt. Massey had no telephone, but he had an address. Denton himself went over. He intended to take Massey back and make him start work then—work all night if necessary under the new "daylight" lamps.

Denton insisted that he see Massey and was taken up to Oliver's room.

"Well, well, Mr. Denton——"

"Shush—" Denton listened some more. "Say, who is that singing—that's great stuff," he said.

"Yeah? She's the girl I asked you to give a hearing—and that stiff Anderson told her she was no good; he took his own, sweetie on, that Viola kid and——"

But Denton did see Jean, a little later. The results of all this are partly embodied in what old Deacon Handley, of Radford, said.

"It's terrible to think of that purty Jean Nichols goin' to perdition the way she's done. She not only married an artist, and all artists are awful sinful men, but she went on th' stage and she's play-actin' and singin' right now!"

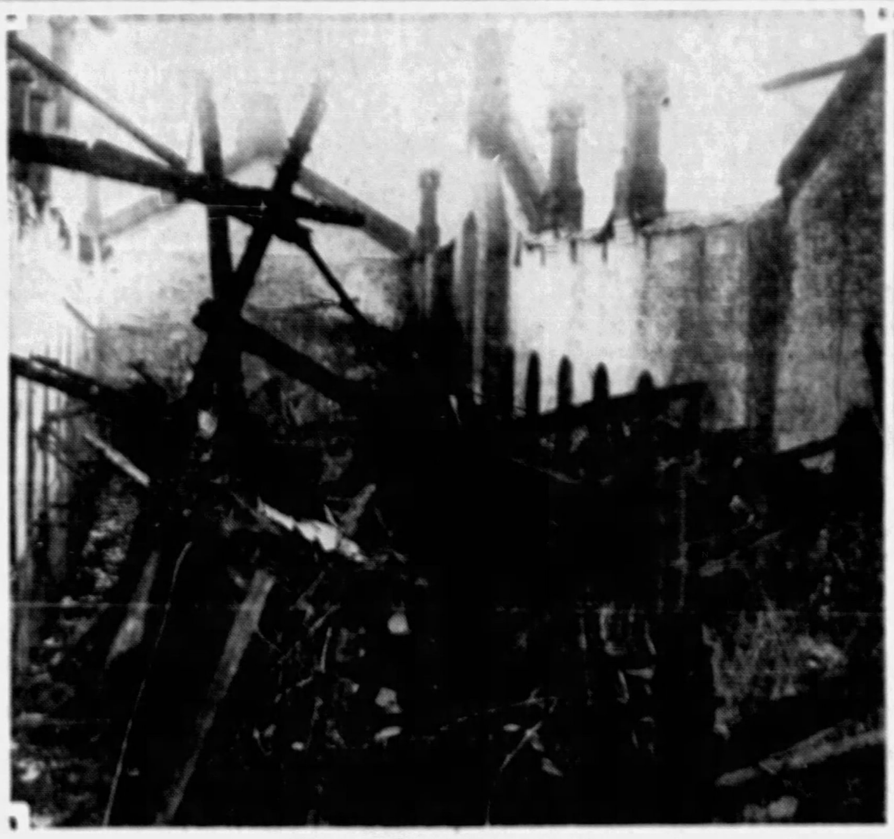
OHIO'S OVERCROWDED FIRETRAP PRISON SOUNDS WARNING

IGNORES WARNING.
Myers Y. Cooper, governor of Ohio—As late as last March he was presented with a pile of affidavits collected by the Prisoners' Relief Society at Washington and charging the grossest corruption in the administration of the Columbus prison. He ignored their warning.



320 MEN PERISHED HERE!
General view of ruins of the Ohio State penitentiary at Columbus, where 320 prisoners died in a fire a few days ago. The men imprisoned in these electrically locked cells died by fire and suffocation. All of the dead and all of the injured were locked in their cells long after they could have been saved had their keepers not been too callous or too cowardly to surrender the keys. The prison was built to house less than 2,000, but on the night of the holocaust its cells held 4,300 men. These and other ugly facts concerning the state penitentiary have been presented year after year to the government, the people and the Legislature of Ohio, only to be ignored.

HEROES OF HOLOCAUST!
"Speedy" Green, Charles Horton and Clyde White—these men are convicts and heroes who worked bravely and tirelessly to save comrades trapped in the fire which swept the Ohio State prison at Columbus. Horton (center) suffered a severely burned shoulder and was smoke-choked before being rescued. But for the efforts of these and other fire-fighters, the death toll would have been far in excess of 320. Credit for their services may be acknowledged in the official investigation. They were heavily handicapped by the refusal of prison officials either to unlock the cells when the fire signal was given or to turn over the keys to those willing to aid in the rescue.

HANDS TIED!
Preston E. Thomas, warden of the state penitentiary, Columbus, O.—For the last 15 years he has been in charge of the most overcrowded and one of the most idle and mismanaged penitentiaries in this or any other country. Affidavits to this effect were filed with the governor of Ohio.

Senate Should Hasten to Pass Prison Bills Adopted by House and Prevent Repetition of Ohio's Holocaust

The Hearst publications appeal to the United States Senate to heed the awful warning of the prison holocaust at Columbus, which has DISGRACED THE STATE OF OHIO, HUMILIATED THE AMERICAN NATION AND SHOCKED THE CIVILIZED WORLD.

This the Senate can and should do by promptly passing the group of prison bills, which recently passed the House, to prevent a repetition in a federal penitentiary of the preventable horror that has cost the lives of at least three hundred and twenty inmates of the Ohio penitentiary and injured many more.

All of the dead and all of the injured at Columbus were locked in their cells long after they could have been saved had their keepers not been too callous or too cowardly to surrender the keys.

All of the dead and all of the injured were the victims of prison conditions for which THE GOVERNMENT AND PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF OHIO HAVE LONG BEEN WHOLLY TO BLAME.

For the last fifteen years the warden of the Columbus prison has been in charge of the MOST OVERCROWDED AND ONE OF THE MOST IDLE AND MISMANAGED PENITENTIARIES IN THIS OR ANY OTHER COUNTRY.

The Ohio penitentiary was first established at Columbus in 1830. Although added to from time to time the building was NEVER FIREPROOF. Built to accommodate LESS THAN 2,000 its cells held 4,300 THE NIGHT OF THE FIRE.

Nor were these ugly facts unknown to the government and people of Ohio. YEAR AFTER YEAR THEY HAVE BEEN LAID BEFORE THE OHIO LEGISLATURE ONLY TO BE IGNORED. As late as last August they were broadcast to the American people by the National Society of Penal Information. Its handbook issued then said:

"THE ANCIENT PLANT AT THE STATE PENITENTIARY IN COLUMBUS, ONE OF THE LARGEST PRISONS IN THE COUNTRY, SUFFERS FROM A CONDITION OF OVERCROWDING WORSE THAN THAT IN ANY OTHER PRISON. THE NEED OF ANOTHER INSTITUTION IN THE OHIO PENAL SYSTEM HAS BEEN APPARENT FOR MANY YEARS."

But the warning of the National Society for Penal Information fell upon deaf ears.

As late as last March the president of the Prisoners Relief Society at Washington submitted to the governor of Ohio a pile of affidavits CHARGING THE GROSSEST KIND OF CORRUPTION IN THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE COLUMBUS PRISON. These affidavits charged that the prisoners were compelled to pay their keepers for food, for blankets, for good behavior certificates, even for recommendation for parole.

But the warning of these affidavits also fell upon deaf ears.

And as a result three hundred and twenty helpless inmates pay the penalty of death. OHIO PAYS THE PENALTY OF DISGRACE AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE PAY THE PENALTY OF HUMILIATION IN THE EYES OF THE WORLD.

But the federal government cannot point the finger of scorn at the state of Ohio until conditions in federal penitentiaries are alleviated.

Since that time the population of federal prisons alone has increased FROM MORE THAN 10,000 TO MORE THAN 12,000, which means that the overcrowding and idleness now are WORSE THAN THEY WERE THEN.

Third: For permitting the establishment of additional road camps and prison industrial projects.

Fourth: For selecting sites and drafting plans for new institutions WHERE INMATES CAN BE PUT TO USEFUL WORK AND PREPARED FOR FUTURE CITIZENSHIP INSTEAD OF BEING CONDEMNED TO IDLENESS AND TRAINED IN CRIMINALITY.

The House passed these prison bills early in the year. The Senate should pass them without any more delay.

Surely the warning of the Columbus holocaust will not go unheeded by the United States Senate.

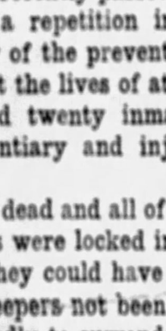
Surely the awful and unnecessary death suffered by those three hundred and twenty inmates of the Ohio penitentiary will touch the heart and quicken the conscience of every one of the able men and good Americans in the United States Senate.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE—By H. G. WELLS

In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells

With these ideas in mind, we can turn back to the three southern continents and their three wholly different sets of animal inhabitants.

First comes Australia and its marsupial menagerie. During most of the late Mesozaic Era (IV), Australia was connected with the rest of the world.



H. G. Wells

Whether there existed a land-bridge to Asia, or, as many are inclined to believe, to Antarctica and thence again up to Cape Horn, or whether, as Wegener thinks, it once formed a part of a great southern continent which was later broken up, we must leave to the geologists to settle; in any case it is immaterial to us.

We know that true placentals did not appear on earth before the late Cretaceous (IV C), that the earlier, Mesozoic (IV), mammals were akin to monotremes and to marsupials, though mostly even more primitive in type, and occurred all over Europe and North America.

All of them, however, were very small, and they showed little variety in their ways of life.

Some time in the Cretaceous (NC) these primitive marsupial and monotreme mammals penetrated into Australia; the land-connection between it and the rest of the world was broken before any placentals could enter.

Australia thus became the marsupial's Ark—with the important difference that they did not stay merely a year and ten days in it like the animals in Noah's Ark, but over fifty million years. Indeed it was to them like a combination of Ark and Promised Land.

For, during that long time they flourished and were able to give rise to new and varied forms of life, not found in any other region of the world.

These possibilities of the pouched mammal were never realized elsewhere, since in all other regions the marsupials were kept from rising or exterminated by the competition of the placental hordes, biologically more efficient in the protection of their unborn young and in the construction of their brains.

Now that modern man has introduced placentals into Australia, the marsupials are no match for them, and are dying out. The development of the varied marsupial life of Australia was due to the biological Protection.

Competing imports were barred. Home industries flourished, but their products never came up to those resulting from a more vigorous competition.

South America, on the other hand, was open to the North in early Eocene times (V A1), but only for a short time.

This allowed representatives of some, but not all, of the early placental mammals to enter, and the connection was then broken, not to be re-established till the close of the Miocene (V C3), perhaps 30,000,000 years later.

Thus the inhabitants of South America, like those of Australia, were for long preserved from the full stress of competition; the difference lying in the fact that it was not marsupials, but the early and primitive placentals, which there found an Ark.

Similar results followed in both regions—the development of creatures elsewhere unknown, the flowering denied to primitive types in more strenuous regions.

The chief factor contributing to this local evolution of South American types was the total absence of carnivores and of true ungulates. The only flesh-eating mammals were primitive marsupial types, all now extinct.

The absence of more specialized beasts of prey permitted a great number of sluggish, large and inoffensive creatures to come into existence, such as armadillos and their allies, sloths, big rodents like tree-porcupines and vizcachas, opossums and ant-eaters; while the absence of those best-developed of herbivorous running machines, the true ungulates, permitted other stocks more or less adequately to fill the gap thus left in life's economy.

We have already mentioned the remarkable if slightly inferior imitation of horse-evolution achieved by what we may call the pseudo-horses, the Litopterna.

LISTEN, WORLD!
—By Elsie Robinson—

UNCLE SAM MAY PROTECT THE NATION'S PIGS . . .

BUT HE MUSTN'T PROTECT THE NATION'S BABIES . . .

And shan't, if Mrs. William Lowell Putnam, sister of the president of Harvard University, and Mrs. Francis E. Slattery have their way. These two distinguished Boston ladies have organized "THE SILENT WOMEN OF AMERICA," whose purpose is to "combat the nationalization of children."

What do they mean by "nationalization"?

Any form of FEDERAL AID that protects children or promotes their interests. And at present the children of America could stand plenty of promotion and protection. Yes, I know we're crazy about the Dear Little Children. And we've wonderful schools. And beautiful homes. And we look with scorn at the way those brutal, materialistic foreigners treat their families.

BUT THE BLACK TRUTH IS THAT MORE BABIES AND MOTHERS DIE IN CHILDBIRTH IN AMERICA DUE TO IGNORANCE AND NEGLECT THAN IN ANY OTHER CIVILIZED COUNTRY—

AND WE HAVE A MOST SHAMEFUL RECORD OF ILLITERACY AND CHILD LABOR—

We could stop all that.

We could renew that Sheppard-Towner Maternity Act, under which the Federal government gave the states dollar-for-dollar toward the aid of poor and ignorant mothers, before and during birth.

We could pass an amendment against child labor.

We could install a United States Department of Education.

But none of these things will come to pass—not if THE SILENT WOMEN can prevent 'em. For, according to these defenders of the Constitution such Federal aid "nationalizes children." And the government mustn't meddle with children.

The Government may protect pigs and poultry, forests and farms, because they're valuable national property. It may promote highways and waterways, because these are of interstate importance. But it mustn't protect babies or promote education.

Aren't babies valuable—isn't their health and education a matter of inter-state importance?

Well, maybe. But, according to THE SILENT WOMEN, they are NOT the wards of the nation—like the lucky pigs and the fortunate forests. They are the sacred wards of Momma 'n' Poppa 'n' the State Authorities 'n' God.

But suppos'n Momma 'n' Poppa 'n' the State Authorities are too stupid or ignorant or greedy to protect the youngsters—and God is seemingly too busy—what then? Well then, it's just too bad. But Uncle Sam mustn't do anything about it. For even if the kids are killed in the scuffle, THE SILENT WOMEN OF AMERICA will protect them from being nationalized.

And what will the grateful when they're relieved of this do when they're relieved of this nationalization menace? They'll do pretty much as they're doing now. Thousands of them will die at birth, or shortly after, because their mothers are too ignorant to know how to care for them or too poor to afford service.

Thousands of them will be maimed and killed in the darkness of mines, in the maws of machines, in the furrow of fields.

Thousands of them will remain as ignorant as savages and eventually end in jails and on gallows and electric chairs.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY
—By O. O. McIntyre—

NEW YORK, April 26. — The man who owns and drives a taxi-cab independently in New York must make a living almost solely on tips, if one I chatted with last night is to be believed. A taxi must clear a snug amount on the day to take care of the overhead before it begins to earn a penny for the driver.

There's the promissary note, amounting to $4.50 a day in buying the cab, depreciation, tires, gas and oil. Fifteen dollars is charged against a night trick and $8 against the day. The heaviest taxi patronage is between 6 and 9 p. m. and 11 p. m. and 1 a. m.

The big bugaboo of charioteers is snow. It brings business to a minimum. Fares are skittish about slipping on the sidewalk, etting to and from cabs and they also fear the dangers of skidding. Drivers, however, say the greatest danger is after a slight rain.

This causes a slick moisture on asphalt. On the other hand, an all day or night downpour provides a gold mine. People who seldom ride in taxis use them then. Fifty dollars a week profit is considered "a good break," but the average is around $35. The driver's hours are extremely irregular.

The usual tip for a short haul is 15 cents and 25 cents for a long one. The most extravagant tippers are young blades out with their girls and fares with alcoholic bursts of generosity. A drunk is usually profitable. Fifteen per cent of taxi patrons do not tip at all.

Two women have been unsuccessful driving cabs of their own. Two Chinese, a Japanese, a Turk and a Hawaiian own and operate their own cabs. While there are still a number of gyp or "run around" cabs, police vigilance and careful selection have reduced them to a negligible minority.

At Forty-fifth street and Fifth avenue last night a taxi stopped. A policeman from each side of the street leaped to the running boards. The cab snapped into high gear and with loud honking, jockeyed through traffic. Pedestrians rushed to the curb to gape. Under the Sixth avenue L it poised, shot away with a break of lights and halfway to Broadway swerved to the curb. The patrolmen dropped from their perches, called goodnight to the driver—and ambled into a speak easy. New York!

The biggest bill of the week was run up by a gentleman from Chicago at a Park avenue inn. On his second day before dinner he turned on his bath and stretched on the bed for the tub to fill. Three hours later he was awakened from sound sleep by gentlemen in gum boots in the hall. The tub had overflowed and soaked the ceilings and expensive draperies of two apartments below, aside from damages to his own suite. His bill was $4,240.

On gray drizzling days I frequently slip into a raincoat and with the dog walk in Central Park. On such a day recently I found a gentleman huddled up on a bench under an umbrella reading a gloomy biography of Heinie. That is a new high in achieving melancholy solitude.

I am always secretly amused at those French menus that skim along like a humming bird featuring oeuffs poche, curry d'agneau and jambon York and then suddenly burst out with apple pie.

I am also a trifle stubborn about ordering soups with such la-de-dah labels as Potage Fermiere. They are generally full of everything careful diners shunned the night before.

And it seems to me there is nothing delighting a man so much as to tell in detail what he likes for breakfast. Give him a good start and you have to choke him off. Ask some friend what he had for breakfast this morning and you'll get the idea.

As food is up for discussion, there is the letter just received from O. W. inquiring "I am wondering if you are the fellow who brought his own mustache cup into a Pullman diner on the 20th Century last Thursday."

No. I was the fellow who wore the horse-hair watch chain with the carved peachseed dangle.

In the East Sixties is an interior decorating firm known as Bitter & Loud. Sounds like the description of an incompatible wife a gentleman was telling me about today.

As one of the eye-popping alto sweet-adeliners in a small town barbershop quartet it is pleasing to announce that three of my fellow warblers have become professional singers. But I have to keep on doing this! (Voice: Must you?)
